Sustainable Education and Development—Clean Energy Clinton Aigbavboa, Wellington Thwala, Joseph N. Mojekwu, Lawrence Atepor, Emmanuel Adinyira, Gabriel Nani, Emmanuel Bamfo-Agyei, 2025-02-07 This book is Volume 1 of the proceedings of 2023 Sustainable Education and Development Research Conference This volume concentrates on papers in the area of clean energy Despite considerable progress more than 700 million people worldwide still lack access to electricity and around 2.4 billion people continue to use harmful and polluting fuels for cooking While efforts have been made to promote renewable energy and energy efficiency they have not been fast enough to achieve Sustainable Development Goal 7 Adding to the challenge the ongoing war in Ukraine has contributed to rising global energy prices and heightened energy insecurity in Europe In response to the energy crisis some European countries are planning to accelerate the transition to renewables and increase investments in clean energy and energy efficiency However others are considering a resurgence of coal which poses a risk to the overall green transition Between 2010 and 2020 the percentage of the global population with access to electricity increased from 83% to 91% with 1.3 billion people gaining access Nevertheless this leaves approximately 733 million people still without electricity and most of them reside in sub-Saharan Africa Achieving universal access by 2030 the annual growth rate in access needs to accelerate from 0.5 percentage points to 0.9 percentage points necessitating significant efforts in low income fragile and conflict affected countries In 2020 69% of the global population had access to clean cooking fuels and technologies While more than half of those without access to clean cooking fuels live in Asia the 20 countries with the lowest percentage of people having access to clean cooking were predominantly least developed countries in Africa The share of renewable sources in total final energy consumption reached 17.7% globally in 2019 just slightly higher than the figure for 2015 The electricity sector leads in the adoption of renewables accounting for 26.2% of total final energy consumption in 2019 while the heat and transport sectors have made limited progress Global primary energy intensity defined as global total energy supply per unit of GDP improved from 5.6 megajoules per dollar 2017 purchasing power parity in 2010 to 4.7 megajoules in 2019 However the rate of improvement 1.6% per year on average since 2015 falls short of the 3.2% annual rate needed to reach Sustainable Development Goal 7.3 International financial flows to support clean and renewable energy in developing countries reached 10.9 billion in 2019 a 23.6% decrease from 2018 This decline occurred even before the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic Over a longer five year moving average average annual commitments decreased for the first time since 2008 from 17.5 billion in 2014 to 16.6 billion in 2015. Although developing countries achieved a record of 245.7 watts per capita in installed renewable energy generating capacity in 2020, small island developing States, least developed countries and landlocked developing countries have lagged behind. It would take least developed countries and landlocked developing countries nearly 40 years and small island developing States almost 15 years to reach the same level of progress as the average developing country in 2020. The 2023 SEDRC conference titled Sustainable Development and Education aims to redefine the understanding of research in the continent's development and the role of researchers. The conference focusses on applied research discussions and its dissemination. Researchers from research institutions, academicians, postgraduate students, politicians and industry representatives will be the primary audience for the conference proceedings.

The Political Economy of Heaven and Earth in Ghana Charles Prempeh, 2023-09-30. In March 2017, the president of Ghana, Nana Addo Dankwa Akufo-Addo, announced his intention to build a national cathedral to the people of Ghana. The announcement elicited watertight counter arguments that morphed into two a priori re-litigated assumptions: First, Ghana is a secular country, and second, religion and state formation are incompatible. Informed by a frustrating paradox of an overwhelming religious presence and concurrent pervasive corruption in the country, public conversation reached a cul de sac of conviction without compromising. In The Political Economy of Heaven and Earth in Ghana, Charles Prempeh deploys the national cathedral as an entry point to provide both interdisciplinary and autoethnographic understanding of religion and politics. The book shows the capacity of religion when properly cultivated and curated as a worldview to answer the why questions of life will foster personal, moral, collective and ontological responsibility. All this is needed to stem the tide against corruption, commodity fetishism, environmental degradation, illegal mining, galamsey, heritage destruction and religious exploitation. Prempeh recuperates a historical fact about the mutual inclusivity between religion and politics, politics helping to manage differences while religion provides a transcendental reason for unity to be forged for human flourishing. Separating the two is therefore ahistorical and an obvious threat to the intangible virtues that answer why and how questions for public governance. West Africa, 2002. Department of the Interior and Related Agencies

Transforming Healthcare in Africa Robert Dibié, 2025-01-14. The current available books and literature that shed light on health policies in many African countries are limited. Transforming Healthcare in Africa: A Comparative Analysis by Professor Robert Dibié examines the key players in the health system game in many African countries. It explores the regulatory regimes that impact the health systems such as the Ministry of Health. It also provides few case studies of the relationship between the government, the environment and their citizens. Apart from filling the gap in the healthcare policy in African literature the authors also seek to examine the impacts of weak health policies and the inability to effectively formulate solid initiatives for capacity building that could lead to enhanced healthcare delivery for all their citizens Thus Dibie s book provides evidence to inform scholarly discussion on the best approaches to strengthen healthcare delivery and public health capacity in many African countries The book also sought to answer six research questions 1 How is healthcare delivery perceived by African countries 2 How are healthcare policies implemented in urban and rural regions or local governments in African countries 3 To what extent are current health services delivered to respond to all citizens needs in African countries 4 What is the current capacity for rural or local governments to effectively engage in health service delivery 5 How can citizens living in rural and urban regions be empowered in the health development delivery system and 6 Which is the best evidence based management system adopted to improve affordable healthcare system in many African countries It also fills the gap in the literature of health systems in Africa

Children, Childhood, and the Future Andrea Kleeberg-Niepage, 2020-01-10 Although most of the world s children live in the Global South much of the corpus of scientific knowledge which forms the basis of the current notion of good childhood worldwide is drawn from research on Western middle class children Even cross cultural research often applies the Western model of childhood as the standard to which others must correspond This volume serves to bridge this gap by both bringing up significant features of the development and socialisation of children in African countries and presenting cross cultural procedures which help to discuss and develop differentiated and joint ideas about childhood instead of implementing one sided standards which are disconnected from most children s lives

Low-fee Private Schooling and Poverty in Developing Countries Joanna Härmä, 2021-01-14 In Low fee Private Schooling and Poverty in Developing Countries Joanna Härmä draws on primary research carried out in sub Saharan African countries and in India to show how the poor are being failed by both government and private schools The primary research data and experiences are combined with additional examples from around the world to offer a wide perspective on the issue of marketized education low fee private schooling and government systems Härmä offers a pragmatic approach to a divisive issue and an ideologically driven debate and shows how the well intentioned international drive towards education for all is being encouraged and even imposed long before some countries have prepared the teachers and developed the systems needed to implement it successfully Suggesting that governments need to take a much more constructive approach to the issue Härmä argues for a greater acceptance of the challenges abandoning ideological positions and a scaling back of ambition in the hope of laying stronger foundations for educational development
