The Places of Early Modern Criticism Gavin Alexander, Emma Gilby, Alexander Marr, 2021-04-29 What is criticism And where is it to be found Thinking about literature and the visual arts is found in many places in treatises, apologies and paragoni in prefaces, letters and essays in commentaries, editions, reading notes and commonplace books in images, sculptures and built spaces within or on the thresholds of works of poetry and visual art It is situated between different disciplines and methods Critical ideas and methods come into England from other countries and take root in particular locations: the court, the Inns of Court, the theatre, the great house, the printer's shop, the university The practice of criticism is transplanted to the Americas and attempts to articulate the place of poetry in a new world And commonplaces of classical poetics and rhetoric serve both to connect and to measure the space between different critical discourses Tracing the history of the development of early modern thinking about literature and the visual arts requires consideration of various kinds of place: material, textual, geographical and the practices particular to those places it also requires that those different places be brought into dialogue with each other This book brings together scholars working in departments of English, modern languages and art history to look at the many different places of early modern criticism It argues polemically for the necessity of looking afresh at the scope of criticism and at what happens on its margins and for interrogating our own critical practices and disciplinary methods by investigating their history
