What Brain Research Can Teach About Cutting School Budgets:

What Brain Research Can Teach About Cutting School Budgets Karen D. Olsen, 2010-02-18 Karen Olsen's What Brain Research Can Teach About Cutting School Budgets is a practical guide for school leaders who are charged with the painstaking task of making budget cuts—a task typically driven by emotion, tradition, and the power of social leaders followed by disagreements and dissatisfaction. This book offers an alternative: a way to use brain research to create powerful but politically neutral decision-making criteria. The author offers clear action items, brain research summaries, and checklists to guide leaders through the budget-cutting process and to ensure that they reinvest money into the key programmes that will truly impact student achievement.

What Brain Research Can Teach About Cutting School Budgets Karen D. Olsen, 2010-02-18 Karen Olsen has put budget topics into perspective so that school administrators can make decisions based on what is best for children, not what is easiest and most efficient for adults. This book is a powerful guide in helping our principals see through the fog of mandates, policies, and red tape and get to the priority of students. Terri Patterson, Director of Elementary Education, Waco Independent School District, TX. This book boldly asserts that brain research should be applied wherever human brains are working. Not only can and should brain research inform how and what we teach in the classroom, it should be brought to bear in boardrooms and the school budgeting process as well. Linda Jordan, Associate Professor, Hope College. Make objective budget-cutting decisions that will truly impact student achievement. In tough economic environments, budget-cutting is a daunting but necessary task for many school administrators. Karen D. Olsen takes an exciting, unique approach by applying brain research to budgeting. Now educators can make the decision-making process more objective by using analytical thinking in school budgeting rather than responding to emotion, tradition, or outside influences. Providing a strategy builder chart, this book offers action items for putting the strategies into practice. Helps leaders determine where money should be reinvested or reallocated. Provides specific tips for working within a group decision-making setting. Includes more than 30 analytical charts to aid in gathering needed information. What Brain Research Can Teach About Cutting School Budgets offers principals and district leaders a methodical process for taking subjectivity out of the budgeting process.

Teaching Children Ann El-Moslimany, 2018-01-01 The author explores education from the essential principles of Tawhid, Oneness of God, humanity, knowledge, fitrah, concept of human nature, and the role of humans as vicegerents of God on earth, responsibility, and stewardship. The current education system dates back a hundred years or more and is in desperate need of a reboot. In developing the industrialized society, the education system itself became like a factory, the end product being pupils who merely regurgitate facts and themselves end up as cogs in the machine that is the wider industrial complex. The legacy of this is a soulless, functional educational system that fails to develop pupils to meet the present and future needs of individuals and their expectations. This failure inevitably impacts on society and humanity at large. Society has long since moved beyond the industrial revolution and into an age of global connectedness where the sum of human knowledge is freely available via the internet It is an age where people are generally more well informed and on a variety of issues An effective holistic educational philosophy is required one that gives full spiritual meaning to all that a child learns It should equip children with spiritual awareness morals and values social responsibility and accountability self discipline and self determination self confidence and empowerment ambition and aspiration tempered with thoughtfulness and a sense of gratitude

The current education system dates back a hundred years or more and is in desperate need of a reboot whilst at the same time it needs to reconnect with teaching methods and principles long since forgotten in the name of progress and modernity What we have today consists broadly of a set number of pupils moving from one classroom to another fed a conveyor belt of unconnected and unrelated facts using uninspiring books and methods to then regurgitate these in endless exams the resulting scores of which are used next to assess intellectual ability and mastery of a subject Nurturing a child's moral understanding of the universe together with a holistic worldview connection with all that has been created awareness of civic responsibility to make the world a better place and ability to co exist and work in collaboration with others contends the author is vital to the growth and progress of each and every child allowing for greater realization of their given potential The work also calls for the use of the latest innovative tools and technologies to make the educational experience an inspirational one This would make of the actual learning environment the classroom and school a dynamic and interesting place wherein the teacher is not a site foreman but a wise role model able to nurture the best in the child

The Elusive Sentence Rita Eulalie Hatfield,Leta

Marie Young,2015-12-08 Across our nation many within our educational system complain that America s children cannot write well Hatfield and Young assert that the problem lies at the foundation of our pedagogy for writing that most elementary writing curricula lack rudimentary instruction at the sentence level The authors introduce a sentence level writing intervention that explicitly defines the elements found in great sentences This intervention forms the foundational framework for writing skills acquisition helping teachers students and writers of all ages to understand how to craft well written sentences and paragraphs Research supports that the most effective instruction is skills based and multisensory therefore Hatfield and Young also introduce a cognitively differentiated writing model which uses arts integrated instruction to enhance learning and memory for other content areas This writing model is based on best practice and this sentence level intervention serves as a precursor for mastering the new writing standards for CCSS It offers novice writers a precise blueprint for what successful writing looks like and clearly defines the elusive sentence
