Aquatic Agricultural Systems AAS is being implemented in ten communities in the Barotse floodplain of Zambia s Western Province With a focus on the rural poor and vulnerable the AAS program aims to reduce poverty and improve food security by harnessing the development potential productivity and diversity of aquatic and agricultural systems The development challenge in the Barotse floodplain as identified by relevant stakeholders is to make effective use of seasonal flooding patterns and natural resources through more productive and diversified aquatic agricultural management practices that improve the lives and livelihoods of the poor and vulnerable Food and nutrition are essential to support the overall AAS program objective and overcome the specific development challenge of the Barotse floodplain Zambia has very high malnutrition rates particularly for stunting in children under five Poor nutritional status especially of women and children inhibits individual growth and development and negatively impacts the overall health productivity and economic potential of a community The purpose of this report is to analyze the food and nutrition security situation within the Barotse floodplain It explores multiple sectors including nutrition agriculture health and gender at the national provincial and community level to provide a comprehensive understanding of food and nutrition in the ten AAS communities in relation to the country as a
