Women's Education in Developing Countries Elizabeth M. King,M. Anne Hill,1997-07-01 Why do women in most developing countries lag behind men in literacy Why do women get less schooling than men This anthology examines the educational decisions that deprive women of an equal education It assembles the most up to date data organized by region Each paper links the data with other measures of economic and social development This approach helps explain the effects different levels of education have on womens fertility mortality rates life expectancy and income Also described are the effects of women s education on family welfare The authors look at family size and women s labor status and earnings They examine child and maternal health as well as investments in children s education Their investigation demonstrates that women with a better education enjoy greater economic growth and provide a more nurturing family life It suggests that when a country denies women an equal education the nation s welfare suffers Current strategies used to improve schooling for girls and women are examined in detail The authors suggest an ambitious agenda for educating women It seeks to close the gender gap by the next century Published for The World Bank by The Johns Hopkins University Press What Works in Girls' Education Barbara Knapp Herz,Gene B. Sperling,2004 What Works in Girls Education summarizes the extensive body of research on the state of girls education in the developing world today the impact of educating girls on families economies and nations and the most promising approaches to increasing girls enrollment and educational quality Women's Education in Developing Countries Audrey C. Smock,1981 Girls' Education in the Twenty-first Century Mercy Tembon,Lucia Fort,2008-01-01 Persuasive evidence demonstrates that gender equality in education is central to economic development Despite more than two decades of accumulated knowledge and evidence of what works in improving gender equality progress on the ground remains slow and uneven across countries What is missing Given that education is a critical path to accelerate progress toward gender equality and the empowerment of women what is holding us back These questions were discussed at the global symposium Education A Critical Path to Gender Equality and Women s Empowerment which was sponsored by the World Bank in October 2007 Girls Education in the 21st Century is based on background papers developed for the symposium The book s chapters reflect the current state of knowledge on education from a gender perspective and highlight the importance of and challenges to female education as well as the interdependence of education and development objectives The last chapter presents five strategic directions for advancing gender equality in education and their implications for World Bank operations Girls Education in the 21st Century will be of particular interest to researchers educators school administrators and policy makers at the global national regional and municipal levels Women's Education in Developing Countries Elizabeth M. King,Banco Mundial,1993 Women's Education in Developing Countries Banco Mundial, Women's Education in Developing Countries Elizabeth M. King,M. Anne Hill,1991 Women's Education in the Third World Gail P. Kelly,Carolyn M. Elliott,1983-06-30 Gail Kelly and Carolyn Elliott have assembled the latest and best available scholarship from a range of disciplines to illuminate the determinants nature and outcomes of women s education in third World nations This study focuses on the undereducation of women in Africa Asia Latin America and the Middle East delving into its causes changes in female education patterns and the significance of these changes to societies and to women s lives Articles in this volume lay the foundation for further research by examining women s schooling from the novel perspective that the social and economic outcomes of women s education are shaped by gender sex systems that subordinate women to men

Investing in All the People Lawrence H. Summers,1994-01-01 World Bank Technical Paper 244 This report on the experiences of several Pacific island nations indicates that in remote villages solar photovoltaic PV technologies are supplying reliable power at costs lower than those of the more commonly used diesel systems Although the supply of electricity to households is limited PV does provide isolated peoples with access to light and to information through television and VCRs The study shows that the success of these programs depends not only on the technology itself but on personnel training good fee collection systems and careful financial management Where managerial and technical expertise was lacking maintenance by local cooperatively owned utilities proved to be the best option The authors present a case study from Tuvalu where the solar PV system exemplifies the program s effectiveness in serving remote areas The successful Tuvalu Solar Electric Cooperative Society TSECS formed in 1984 has been maintained by a well trained technical staff with local and visiting technicians It has also benefited from fee collection through an outside agency that prevents diversion of funds to other projects local user committees to communicate with the utility and an exclusive focus on PV systems Environmentally attractive at both the global and local levels PV solar technology appears highly promising for small scale applications in developing countries

Women, Literacy, and Development Anna Robinson-Pant,2004 This book presents a new perspective on the assumed links between women s literacy and development and explores current innovative approaches to research and policy around women s literacy
