Work Stress And Burn Out In Hiv aids:

Dying to Care David Miller, 2005-06-23 Based on major multi centre research in the UK Dying to Care identifies why work stress is a problem in health care generally and in HIV health care in particular The similarities and differences between work stress experienced in general health care settings and in HIV AIDS are explored in a state of the art review of research and experience in the field to date The book has a practical focus and goes on to explore ways in which the unique stresses of patient advocacy in HIV AIDS can be addressed identifying the best approaches for management Highlighting the practical importance of a clear distinction between the burnout and work stress for design of strategies for burnout prevention the emergence of the concept of burnout is described and the general historical confusion between work stress and burnout examined This will be a key handbook for managers physicians nurses social workers health advisors and counsellors working in or alongside healthcare Psycho Bio Int Hiv Infect Nott, 2000-05-01 HIV infection has more than any other event this century taught us that the biological psychological social and behavioural aspects of disease are inextricably linked This volume examines the interplay between these aspects of HIV disease using the conceptual framework provided by the biopsychosocial model of disease The broad spectrum of HIV symptomatology has necessitated the gathering together of a diverse body of health professionals who have sought to overcome the threat posed to both physical and emotional health by the infection Thus the disease has done much to shift the focus of medical care away from an exclusive orientation towards physical well being to one which includes emotional well being and quality of life Fresh
