Islands of Rainforest Edvard Hviding, Tim Bayliss-Smith, 2018-05-08 This title was first published in 2000 An original and thought provoking analysis of modern initiatives in the tropical rain forest While issues such as logging eco timber eco tourism have been widely analyzed from an outsider s perspective this book considers them from the local people s viewpoint in terms of a long history of the rainforest uses The authors demonstrate that the relationship of indigenous people to the tropical forest is not essentially timeless nor is it primarily spiritual or mystical It is in fact firmly connected to modern realities while still being rooted in historical beliefs and practices Standing at the intersection of anthropology historical geography and rainforest ecology and also at the interface of the local and the global this ethnographically grounded study dispels a number of commonly held assumptions It reveals how processes of impact are actually two way interactions as local communities in Melanesia incorporate industries like logging into rapidly evolving post colonial society and economy A Magic Web ,2016-03-08

The tropical forest of Panama s Barro Colorado Island is a luxuriant community of plants and animals pulsating with life and offering an astonishing view of nature s myriad processes What does the forest look like How do the activities of the forest s plants and animals create a community In A Magic Web photographer Christian Ziegler and evolutionary biologist Egbert Giles Leigh Jr invite readers to enter the marvelous world of Barro Colorado Island This book is a unique combination of spectacular photography and clear authoritative text written by an active scientist who has spent half a lifetime trying to understand the tropical forest Luscious photographs of the forest reveal the wonderful diversity of its inhabitants and show many of the activities that give it its character and lend structure to its community Drawing on decades of work on Barro Colorado Island Egbert Leigh explains how the forest works how plants and animals compete with but also depend on each other how the solitary lives of cats contrast with the intricately organized lives of armies of ants the variety of ways plants struggle for a place in the sun and how these plants attract animals to pollenate their flowers Finally the book shows the importance of tropical forests to the people living near them why they matter to the world at large what we can learn from them and how they differ from temperate zone forests Full of stunning full color photographs accompanied by clear and accessible text A Magic Web is a must for anyone planning to visit a tropical forest and for all those who wish they could tropical rainforests are dense evergreen vegetation characterized by high diversity of plant and animal species They are one of the most fragile and complex terrestrial ecosystems on Earth presently occupying less than 7% area of Earth's surface in America Southeast Asia and Africa Richards 1952 Whitmore 1998 Within continental Asia patches of tropical rainforests are found in Indo China South China and northeast India Whitmore 1998 The tropical wet evergreen forest patches also occur in the Western Ghats of India In northeast India tropical rainforests are restricted to the far eastern part of the region particularly in Tirap and Changlang districts of Arunachal Pradesh and Tinsukia and Dibrugarh districts of Assam Although a major portion of these forests has been brought under protected area management they are still threatened by anthropogenic activities Tropical forests worldwide are exposed to a variety of disturbances ranging from frequent localized events to less frequent landscape level or multiple disturbance events Natural disturbances and concomitant recovery are integral aspects of normal ecosystem behaviour White 1979 Human disturbances on the other hand differ in kind scale intensity and frequency and sometimes they may be more severe and extensive than the natural disturbances Shifting cultivation and extraction of timber and NTFP's species are major causes of disturbance in the humid tropics Reiners 1980 which have destroyed vast tracts of the humid tropical forest ecosystem Logging and timber removal or conversion of forest to other land uses has long term consequences on secondary vegetation nutrient cycles and water balance Turner et al 1997 Several workers have reported that removal or loss of forest cover alters physicochemical characteristics of soil Joergensen and Raubuch 2002 and adversely affects the soil hydrological regime microclimate energy balance and enhances soil erodibility Fenn et al 1993 Input of organic matter and nutrients to soil through litter and root mass help improve nutrient availability by favourably altering the hydrology and physico chemical and biological properties of the soil The periodicity extent and pattern of litter fall and litter decomposition are important in this respect Ambast 1985

Tropical Peatland Eco-management Mitsuru Osaki, Nobuyuki Tsuji, Nazir Foad, Jack Rieley, 2021-04-09 In this Tropical Peatland Eco management book eco management is new terminology as an abbreviation of ecology based management for natural capital enhancement Key concept on this eco management is derived from previous book Tropical Peatland Ecosystem Springer 2015 eds by M Osaki and N Tsuji Based on this new concept this book thoroughly examines tropical peatland eco management for scientists political decision makers governmental officials land managers students and NGO NPOs who are interested in 1 what the impact of peatland on climate change and ecosystem function 2 how the management of disturbed peatland and 3 drawing global scale restoration mechanisms of peatland and wetland In tropical peatland a large amount of GHGs carbon dioxide methane and nitrous oxide is emitted due to the inappropriate development and inadequate management of peatland The peatland ecosystems consist of the carbon water complex which is affected easily by the impact of human and climate change Throughout much research of tropical peatland the problems that result from development of tropical peatland are found to stem mainly from a lack of understanding of the complexities of this ecosystem and the fragility of the relationship between peat and forest and also between carbon and water In past almost all peatland development and management system have been generally designed on water drainage system On the contrast of old system an innovated eco management is here proposed as water irrigation system including water cycling and natural capital enhancement Through this book readers will learn the advanced peatland eco management with more practical methods and procedure based on ecosystem knowledge
