Uncle Toms Cabin As Visual Culture:

Uncle Tom's Cabin as Visual Culture Jo-Ann Morgan, 2007 Examines the artwork of Hammatt Billings George Cruikshank Winslow Homer Eastman Johnson Henry Ossawa Tanner and Thomas Satterwhite Noble to show how as Uncle Tom's Cabin gained popularity visual strategies were used to coax the subversive potential of Stowe's work back within accepted boundaries that reinforced social hierarchies Provided by publisher Dark Designs and Visual Culture Michele Wallace, 2004-12-06 A collection of writings from the 90s by the popular Black feminist scholar and journalist on film art and politics Uncle Tom's Cabins Tracy C. Davis, Stefka Mihaylova, 2020-04-20 As Harriet Beecher Stowe's novel Uncle Tom's Cabin traveled around the world it was molded by the imaginations and needs of international audiences For over 150 years it has been coopted for a dazzling array of causes far from what its author envisioned This book tells thirteen variants of Uncle Tom's journey explicating the novel's significance for Canadian abolitionists and the Liberian political elite that constituted the runaway characters landing points nineteenth century French theatergoers liberal Cuban Romanian and Spanish intellectuals and social reformers Dutch colonizers and Filipino nationalists in Southeast Asia Eastern European Cold War communists Muslim readers and spectators in the Middle East Brazilian television audiences and twentieth century German holidaymakers Throughout these encounters Stowe's story of American slavery serves as a paradigm for understanding oppression selectively and strategically refracting the African American slave onto other iconic victims and freedom fighters The book brings together performance historians literary critics and media theorists to demonstrate how the myriad cultural and political effects of Stowe's enduring story has transformed it into a global metanarrative with national regional and local specificity Racial Innocence Robin Bernstein, 2011-12 In Racial Innocence Robin Bernstein argues that the concept of childhood innocence has been central to U.S. racial formation since the mid nineteenth century Children white ones imbued with innocence black ones excluded from it and others of color erased by it figured pivotally in sharply divergent racial agendas from slavery and abolition to antiblack violence and the early civil rights movement Bernstein takes up a rich archive including books toys theatrical props and domestic knickknacks which she analyzes as scriptive things that invite or prompt historically located practices while allowing for resistance and social improvisation Integrating performance studies with literary and visual analysis Bernstein offers singular readings of theatrical productions from blackface minstrelsy to Uncle Tom's Cabin to The Wonderful Wizard of Oz literary works by Joel Chandler Harris Harriet Wilson and Frances Hodgson Burnett material culture including Topsy pincushions Uncle Tom and Little Eva handkerchiefs and Raggedy Ann dolls and visual texts ranging from fine portraiture to advertisements for lard substitute Throughout Bernstein shows how innocence gradually became the exclusive province of white children until the Civil Rights Movement succeeded not only in legally desegregating public spaces but in culturally desegregating the concept of childhood itself Publisher's description The Sketch, the Tale, and the Beginnings of American Literature Lydia G. Fash, 2020-03-31

Accounts of the rise of American literature often start in the 1850s with a cluster of great American novels Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter Melville's Moby Dick and Stowe's Uncle Tom's Cabin. But these great works did not spring fully formed from the heads of their creators. All three relied on conventions of short fiction built up during the culture of beginnings the three decades following the War of 1812 when public figures glorified the American past and called for a patriotic national literature. Decentering the novel as the favored form of early nineteenth century national literature, Lydia Fash repositions the sketch and the tale at the center of accounts of American literary history, revealing how cultural forces shaped short fiction that was subsequently mined for these celebrated midcentury novels and for the first novel published by an African American. In the shorter works of writers such as Washington Irving, Catharine Sedgwick, Edgar Allan Poe, and Lydia Maria Child, among others, the aesthetic of brevity enabled the beginning idea of a story to take the outsized importance fitted to the culture of beginnings. Fash argues that these short forms, with their ethnic exclusions and narrative innovations, coached readers on how to think about the United States past and the nature of narrative time itself. Combining history, print history, and literary criticism, this book treats short fiction as a vital site for debate over what it meant to be American, thereby offering a new account of the birth of a self-consciously national literary tradition. Glancing Visions Zachary

Tavlin, 2023-06-13. The sweeping vantages that typify American landscape painting from the nineteenth century by Thomas Cole and other members of the Hudson School are often interpreted for their geopolitical connotations as visual attempts to tame the wild, alleviating fears of a savage frontier through views that subdue the landscape to the eye. Zachary Tavlin's Glancing Visions challenges the long-standing assumption that visuality in nineteenth-century art and literature was inherently imperialistic or possessive. While there is much to be said for both material, economic, and theological impulses to clear the wilderness, superimpose a national identity, and usher in a Puritanical idyll, many literary figures of the era display a purposeful disdain for the possessive gaze, signaling instead a preference for subtle glances often informed by early photography. Impressionism, new techniques in portraiture, and soon after the dawn of cinema: the visual subjectivities and contingencies introduced by these media made room for a visual counter-narrative, one informed by a mode of seeing that moves fast and lightly across the surface of things. Tavlin probes Nathaniel Hawthorne's idea of the imagination, one that derives from both the camera obscura in The Custom House and the daguerreotype in The House of the Seven Gables, each in its way an instance of the glance and entirely dependent on temporal moments. The poetry of Frances Ellen Watkins Harper toggles between gazes and glances, unsettling two competing forms of racialized seeing as they pertain to nineteenth-century Black life and racial hierarchies: the sentimental gaze and the slave trader's glance, highlighting the life and death stakes of both looking anyone squarely in the eye and looking away. Emily Dickinson's certain slant of light, syntactical oddities, and her stitching of scraps and fragments into the fascicles that constitute her corpus all derive from a commitment to contingency, the ungrounded life's only defense against the abyss of non-being. Tavlin investigates as well Henry James's vexed but entirely dependent relationship to literary and painterly impressionism and William Carlos Williams's imagist poetics as a response to early cinema's use of the cut as the basis for a new visual grammar Each of these literary artists Tavlin argues via their own distinctive sensibilities and the artistic or technological counterparts that informed them refuse the authoritative all possessive gaze in favor of the glance a mode of seeing thinking and being that made way for what we now think of as commonplace namely modernity A Companion to the American Novel Alfred Bendixen,2014-11-17

Hughes,2012-12-17 In the nineteenth century long before film and television brought us explosions car chases and narrow escapes it was America's theaters that thrilled audiences with sensation scenes of speeding trains burning buildings and endangered bodies often in melodramas extolling the virtues of temperance abolition and women's suffrage Amy E Hughes scrutinizes these peculiar intersections of spectacle and reform revealing the crucial role that spectacle has played in American activism and how it has remained central to the dramaturgy of reform Hughes traces the cultural history of three famous sensation scenes the drunkard with the delirium tremens the fugitive slave escaping over a river and the victim tied to the railroad tracks assessing how these scenes conveyed allayed and denied concerns about the rights and responsibilities of citizenship These images also appeared in printed propaganda suggesting that the coup d'état was an essential part of American reform culture Additionally Hughes argues that today's producers and advertisers continue to exploit the affective dynamism of spectacle reaching an even broader audience through film television and the Internet To be attuned to the dynamics of spectacle Hughes argues is to understand how we see Her book will interest not only theater historians but also scholars and students of political literary and visual culture who are curious about how U S citizens saw themselves and their world during a pivotal period in American history

The Power and Fluidity of Girlhood in Henry Darger's Art Leisa Rundquist, 2021-04-05 This book is the first to examine Henry Darger's conceptual and visual representation of girls and girlhood Specifically Leisa Rundquist charts the artist's use of little girl imagery his direct appropriations from mainstream sources as well as girls modified to meet his needs in contexts that many scholars have read as puerile and psychologically disturbed Consequently this inquiry qualifies the intersexed aspects of Darger's protagonists as well as addresses their inherent cute and little associations that signal multivocal meanings often in conflict with each other Rundquist engages Darger's art through thematic analyses of the artist's writings mature works collages and ephemeral materials This book will be of particular interest to scholars in art history art and gender studies sociology and contemporary art

Blacks and Blackness in European Art of the Long Nineteenth Century Adrienne L. Childs, 2017-07-05 Compelling and troubling colorful and dark black figures served as the quintessential image of difference in nineteenth century European art the essays in this volume further the investigation of constructions of blackness during this period This collection marks a phase in the scholarship on images of blacks that moves beyond undifferentiated binaries like negative and positive that fail to reveal complexities contradictions and ambiguities Essays that cover the late eighteenth through the early twentieth century explore the visibility of blackness in anti-slavery imagery black women in Orientalist art race and beauty in fin de siècle photography the French brand of blackface minstrelsy and a set of little known images of an African model by Edvard Munch In spite of the difficulty of resurrecting black lives in nineteenth century Europe one essay chronicles the rare instance of an American artist of color in mid nineteenth century Europe With analyses of works ranging from Gault's Raft of the Medusa to portraits of the American actor Ira Aldridge this volume provides new interpretations of nineteenth century representations of blacks
