Abstract The authors identify the factors that influence the decision to use a particular type of technology in a business setting. The study is based on a survey of 100 small businesses in the United States. The results show that the most important factors are the perceived benefits of the technology, the ease of use, and the cost of the technology. The authors also find that the size of the business and the industry have a significant impact on the decision to use a particular type of technology.
