The Caribbean Writer, 2008 The River's Song Jacqueline Bishop, 2007 This engaging coming of age novel looks back over the idyllic Jamaican girlhood and the both alienating and transforming experience of winning a scholarship to the most prestigious girls boarding school on the island Atypical of Caribbean literature because of its description of a young girl's sexual awakening the novel offers poetic descriptions of rural and urban Jamaica and delightful characterizations of warm and lively women including the narrator's mother grandmother and neighbors

I Name Me Name Opal Palmer Adisa, 2008 Opal Palmer Adisa employs autobiographical prose dramatic monologue lyric poem praise song blues and prophetic rant to enact the construction of an identity At its centre is a Rastafarian sense of i n e s s but its outer dimensions fully encompass an African Jamaican American woman's radical consciousness of gender race geography the spiritual and the sensual the social political and the historical as the co ordinates of a dynamic space for dialogue and connection Above all I Name Me Name shares with us the making of a writing persona the interface between personal and social space the imagination and the characters who come unbidden to demand that their stories be told

BOOK JACKET
Songster and Other Stories Jennifer Rahim, 2007 Deftly navigating between the present and the past this collection of bittersweet short stories explores the tensions between image and reality in contemporary Trinidad discovering a land that is for the author as imperfect as it is home Tales set in the present day show the traditional communal world in retreat before the forces of local and global capitalism as when a local fisherman challenges a segregationist club and pays with his life
