guns and gun violence Americans express formalistic dismay after every public mass shooting But many accept gun violence as an inevitable even necessary and to some laudable part of what it means to be American Although Americans claim to be shocked with each new outrage so far they have failed to coalesce around an effective way to reduce gun death and injury The debate is bogged down in polarized and profoundly ideological political and cultural argument Meanwhile America continues to lead the globe in its pandemic levels of gun deaths and injuries Combined with the cynical learned helplessness of its politicians the result is gridlock and a growing roll of victims of carnage Is there a path out of this cultural and political gridlock Tragedy in Aurora argues that if America is to reduce gun violence it must expand the debate and confront the fundamental question of who are we Tom Diaz gives a new understanding of American culture and the potential for change offered by the growing number and ongoing organization of victims and survivors of gun violence Without conscious cultural change the book argues there is little prospect of effective laws or public policy to reduce gun violence in general and public mass shootings in particular
