

What is the novel?

- E.M. Forster in Aspects of the Novel cites the definition of a Frenchman named Abel Chevalley: "a fiction in prose of a certain extent" and adds that he defines "extent" as over 50,000 words.
- The word "novel" (which wasn't even used until the end of the 18th century) is an English transliteration of the Italian word "novella"--used to describe a short, compact, broadly realistic tale popular during the medieval period (e.g. The Decameron).
- The novel deals with a human character in a social situation, man as a social being.
- The novel places more emphasis on character, especially one well-rounded character, than on plot.
- Another initial major characteristic of the novel is realism--a full and authentic report of human life.
- The traditional novel has:
 - a unified and plausible plot structure
 - sharply individualized and believable characters
 - a pervasive illusion of reality

Supreme Court , Make Your Ideas Mean Business Jay Moreau,2002-12 A think tank in a book Exercises and practices to engage and direct creative thinking into sturdy and adaptable processes to improve your business Decent People Norman S. Care,2000-10-11 In this book Norman S Care addresses the question of what it is to be a good or decent person His discussion is centered on motivation issues rather than on the content of moral principles or the imperatives of ethical theory He argues that decent people are constrained by moral emotional nature to take certain things seriously and this is part of what it means to have a moral life The background of the discussion is the world around us The world is no extension of the affluence that shields a few of us it is instead a sea of pain and despair with only small and sometimes temporary islands of stability and prosperity *Salon v.
