

A woman with short, curly grey hair and glasses stands in a doorway. She is wearing a dark blue short-sleeved dress and a bright yellow apron. Her arms are crossed over her chest, and she has a red cloth tucked under her left arm. She is looking directly at the camera with a slightly open mouth, as if in the middle of speaking or reacting. The doorway is white, and a dark door is visible behind her. To the left of the doorway is a window with a view of a rocky landscape.

Well What Did The Doctor Say Stories From The Bedside:

Well... What Did the Doctor Say? James V Ferguson, Jim Ferguson, 2015-04-01 A collection of essays from my Knoxville Focus newspaper column The Doctor Is In I write for joy rather than an assignment because my real job is practicing internal medicine and geriatrics These essays were often prompted by patients stories shared with me over forty years of medical care The essays are in no particular order I ve tried to mix humorous stories with others focused on science medicine history philosophy spirituality art travel and yes some politics Each essay can be read in five minutes just long enough for one sitting however two stories might occasionally be necessary And if you find that three are required you might need to consult your doctor I hope you enjoy the stories as much as I did crafting them
