West Meets East Mies Van Der Rohe:

West meets East Werner Blaser, Ludwig Mies van der Rohe, Johannes Malms, 1996 Ludwig Mies van der Rohe reigns as one of the most richly complex figures in architecture's pantheon of classical modernists. Buildings such as his Barcelona Pavilion and New York City's Seagram Building have become 20th century landmarks and prototypes for building in the West. And yet a special feature of Mies van der Rohe's work has escaped attention to date: its remarkable concordance with traditional architecture of China and Japan. Werner Blaser and Johannes Malms' study sets free these hidden connections between West and East. Malms' penetrating text uncovers striking parallels between Far Eastern philosophy and Mies' style of thinking and working. Werner Blaser's photographs make structural similarities underlying Mies' classical modern architecture and Eastern building traditions come into focus.

Mies van der Rohe - The Built Work Carsten Krohn, 2014-06-17 This essential and comprehensive Mies monograph focuses in its analysis on Mies' design intentions; it reconstructs the buildings in their original state, examines them from the present-day perspective, and rediscovers the inspiring architecture of a great modern master. The book presents eighty of Mies' works in chronological order. Approximately thirty of these works are analyzed in detail in three parts. In the first part, the construction is documented in its built state; for this, all the ground plans were redrawn by the author. The second part outlines the changes to the buildings, and the third part develops the results of this investigation with regard to their relevance to the contemporary view of Mies' work.

Confucius' Courtyard Xing Ruan, 2021-10-21 For more than three thousand years, Chinese life from the city and the imperial palace to the temple, the market, and the family home was configured around the courtyard. So too were the accomplishments of China's artistic, philosophical, and institutional classes. Confucius' Courtyard tells the story of how the courtyard, that most singular and persistent architectural form, holds the key to understanding even today much of Chinese society and culture. Part architectural history and part introduction to the cultural and philosophical history of China, the book explores the Chinese view of the world and reveals the extent to which this is inextricably intertwined with the ancient concept of the courtyard: a place and a way of life which it appears has been almost entirely overlooked in China since the middle of the 20th century and in the West for centuries. Along the way, it provides an accessible introduction to the Confucian idea of zhongyong, the Middle Way, the Chinese moral universe, and the virtuous good life in the absence of an awesome God, and shows how these can only be fully understood through the humble courtyard, a space which is grounded in the earth yet open to the heavens. Erudite, elegant, and illustrated throughout by the author's own architectural drawings and sketches, Confucius' Courtyard weaves together architecture, philosophy, and cultural history to explore what lies at the very heart of Chinese civilization.

West meets East, 1967 The Constructed Other: Japanese Architecture in the Western Mind Kevin Nute, 2021-09-30 The Constructed Other argues that the assumed otherness of Japanese architecture has made it both a testbed for Western architectural theories and a source of inspiration for Western designers. The book traces three recurring themes in Western accounts of Japanese architecture from the reopening of Japan in the mid nineteenth century to the present day a wish to see Western architectural theories reflected in Japanese buildings efforts to integrate elements of Japanese architecture into Western buildings and a desire to connect contemporary Japanese architecture with Japanese tradition It is suggested that together these narratives have had the effect of creating what amounts to a mythical version of Japanese architecture often at odds with historical fact but which has exercised a powerful influence on the development of building design internationally

Constructing Japan Beate Loeffler, 2025-09-25 The influence of Japanese art and culture on art in late 19th century Europe and America through collections of objects and knowledge transfer is already recognised However the research in this field often neglects architecture This study takes a new approach placing architecture at the centre Through in depth analysis of contemporary textual and visual sources Beate Loeffler shows how western actors from different backgrounds interpreted Japanese architecture as they experienced it either face to face or via texts and images It unveils a complex process of appropriation and rejection of claim to interpretive sovereignty and fascination with the foreign that led to both new knowledge and cultural clichés

Thinking Color in Space Kerstin Schultz, Hedwig Wiedemann-Tokarz, Eva Maria Herrmann, 2018-12-03
The interaction between color and architecture determines our perception of space and defines the tectonic relationships The fascinating spatial potential of color and the multi layered dimensions of interpretation in the experience of color are design and communication means which however are often not fully used color oscillates between autonomy and functional purpose and should be understood as a distinct material that can be used as part of the design The book focuses both on the tangible aspects and design criteria of color and on its indeterminate nature and its experience value Using examples in art and architecture the spatial interdependency of color is illustrated as is its interaction with structure light and geometry
