

Wh-questions are a type of question that we use to gather information or seek clarification about something. When we say we gather information, it means we want to know more about something, like finding out facts or details. Seeking clarification means that we want to understand something better or get more specific information about it. Wh-questions help us do both of these things. They are called wh-questions because they usually start with words that begin with the letters "wh," such as "who," "what," "where," "when," "why," and "how."

WHO is a person 	WHAT is a thing or an action 	WHEN is a time
WHERE is a place 	WHY is the reason something happened 	HOW is a # or the way something is done
