Ttip The Truth About The Transatlantic Trade And Investment Partnership:

TTIP Ferdi De Ville, Gabriel Siles-Brügge, 2015-11-20 The Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership TTIP has stirred passions like no other trade negotiation in recent history Its supporters maintain that TTIP will produce spectacular growth and job creation claims that are wholeheartedly rejected by its critics who regard TTIP as a direct assault on workers rights health and safety standards and public services In this incisive analysis Gabriel Siles Brugge and Ferdi de Ville scrutinize the claims made by TTIP s cheerleaders and scaremongers to reveal a far more nuanced picture behind the headlines TTIP will not provide an economic cure all nor will it destroy the European welfare state in one fell swoop Thanks to unprecedented levels of protest and debate around TTIP however neoliberal trade negotiations are well and truly back in the spotlight In this respect TTIP could well prove to be a game changer just not in the way imagined by its backers The

EU and the New Trade Bilateralism Finn Laursen, Christilla Roederer-Rynning, 2020-05-21 International trade policy including the trade policies of the European Union EU has become controversial in recent years This book illuminates the politicised process of the EU s contemporary trade negotiations The book uses the notion of contentious market regulation to examine contemporary EU Free Trade Agreements FTAs with industrialised countries the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership with the USA TTIP the Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement with Canada CETA the EU South Korea Agreement KOREU and the EU s agreement with Japan EU Japan It also analyses cross cutting issues affecting trade policy such as business dimensions social mobilisation parliamentary assertion and investment This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of European Integration Handbook on the EU and International Trade

Sangeeta Khorana, María García, 2018-08-31 The Handbook on the EU and International Trade presents a multidisciplinary overview of the major perspectives actors and issues in contemporary EU trade relations Changes in institutional dynamics Brexit the politicisation of trade competing foreign policy agendas and adaptation to trade patterns of value chains and the digital and knowledge economy are reshaping the European Union s trade policy The authors tackle how these challenges frame the aims processes and effectiveness of trade policy making in the context of the EU s trade relations with developed developing and emerging states in the global economy The Democratisation of EU International Relations Through

EU Law Juan Santos Vara, Soledad Rodríguez Sánchez-Tabernero, 2018-07-27 Since the entry into force of the Treaty of Lisbon key improvements have occurred in the democratisation of EU international relations through the increased powers of the European Parliament Nevertheless a comprehensive legal analysis of the new developments in democratic control of EU external action has not yet been performed This book aims to improve the understanding of the set of mechanisms through which democratic control is exerted over EU external action in times of profound transformations of the legal and political architecture of the European integration process It analyses the role of the Court of Justice in the democratisation of international relations through EU law and further provides a legal overview of the role of the European Parliament in the conduct of the EU's international relations. In those areas where the powers of the Parliament have greatly increased, the book aims to raise questions as to whether this enhanced position has contributed to a more consistent external action. At the same time, the book aims to contribute to the debate on judicial activism in connection with the democratisation of EU external action. It offers the reader a detailed and topical analysis of the recent developments in democratic control of external action which are of relevance in the daily practice of EU external relations lawyers, including the topic of mixed agreements. This text will be of key interest to scholars and students working on EU external relations law, EU institutional law, European Union studies, politics, international relations, and more broadly to policy makers and practitioners, particularly to those with an interest in the European Parliament and the Court of Justice of the European Union.

NGOs and Global Trade Erin Hannah, 2016-01-29. In a deeply iniquitous world where the gains from trade are distributed unevenly and where trade rules often militate against progressive social values, human health, and sustainable development, NGOs are widely touted as our best hope for redressing these conditions. As a critical voice of the poor and marginalized, many are engaged in a global struggle for democratic norms and social justice. Yet the potential for NGOs to bring about meaningful change is limited. This book examines whether improvements in participatory opportunities for progressive NGOs result in substantive and normative policy change in one of the major trading powers, the European Union. Hannah advances a constructivist account of the role of NGOs in the EU's trade policymaking process. She argues that NGOs have been instrumental in providing education, raising awareness, and giving a voice to broader societal concerns about proposed trade deals, both when they take advantage of formal participatory opportunities and when they protest from the streets and in the media. However, the book also highlights how NGO inputs are mediated by the social structure of global trade governance. Epistemes, the background knowledge, ideological and normative beliefs, and shared assumptions about how the world works, determine who has a voice in global trade governance. Showing how NGOs succeed only when their advocacy conforms broadly to the dominant episteme, this book will be of value to scholars and students with an interest in NGOs and international trade negotiations. It will also be of interest to policymakers, national trade negotiators, government departments, and the trade policy community.

Contesting Austerity and Free Trade in the EU Julia Rone, 2020-11-24. The book explores the diffusion of protest against austerity and free trade agreements in the wave of contention that shook the EU following the 2008 economic crisis. It discusses how protests against austerity and free trade agreements manifested a wider discontent with the constitutionalization of economic policy and the way economic decisions have been insulated from democratic debate. It also explores the differentiated politicization of these issues and the diffusion of protests across Western as well as Eastern Europe, which has often been neglected in studies of the post-crisis turmoil. Julia Rone emphasizes that far from being an automatic spontaneous process, protest diffusion is highly complex and its success or failure can be impacted by the strategic agency and media practices of key political players involved, such as bottom-up activists as well as trade unions.

Euroscepticism as a Transnational and Pan-European Phenomenon John FitzGibbon, Benjamin Leruth, Nick Startin, 2016-08-19 As the EU enters an increasingly uncertain phase after the 2016 Brexit referendum Euroscepticism continues to become an increasingly embedded phenomenon within party systems non party groups and within the media Yet academic literature has paid little attention to the emergence of and increased development of transnational and pan European networks of EU opposition As the gap between Europe's mainstream political elites and an increasingly sceptical public has widened pan European spheres of opposition towards the EU have developed and evolved The volume sets out to explain how such an innately contradictory phenomenon as transnational Euroscepticism has emerged It draws on a variety of perspectives and case studies in a number of spheres the European Parliament political parties the media civil society and public opinion Examining to what extent the pan European dimension of Euroscepticism is becoming increasingly influential it argues that opposition to European integration has for too long been viewed somewhat narrowly through the paradigm of national party politics This text will be of key interest to scholars students and professionals in EU politics European studies political parties and more broadly to comparative politics and international relations

The Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership (TTIP) between the United States and the European Union. A discussion of its pros, cons and implications Christoph Scherrer, 2016-04-28 Essay from the year 2015 in the subject Politics Topic Globalization Political Economics University of the Sunshine Coast Queensland language English abstract The primary purpose of this essay is to address the pros and cons of TTIP mainly related to the German point of view Afterwards some implications and problems of TTIP are presented Finally the paper concludes the most important points of this agreement and involves future perspectives for the TTIP between the European Union and the United States By reading this paper the reader has the opportunity to form their own opinion on the TTIP based on the comprehensive assets and drawbacks which are submitted This paper introduces the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership called TTIP TTIP is a trade agreement between the United States and the European Union which is currently being negotiated The aim of this convention is to open up the markets on both sides This includes eliminating tariffs and other trade barriers between the two unions the United States and the European Union Furthermore restrictions for commercial services shall also be reduced security of investment and the competitive equality shall be improved and not least the access to public contracts shall be simplified at all levels of government Therefore the TTIP is a unique joint project which can obtain considerable growth and employment effects Bundesministerium für Wirtschaft und Umwelt 2015 However there is a lot of criticism and concerns regarding foreign trade between the European Union and the United States but there are a lot of advantages for both countries as well Some of the topics are highly controversial mainly due to differing standards and norms of both partners Beck Ohr 2014

Policy grade 1 9 Cologne Business School K In language English abstract The following paper refers to the potential of international free trade agreements to create interconnected economic markets which require a common trade policy of the contracting countries The difficulty in this approach is to ensure an economic integration of both countries on the basis of bilateral treaties despite differing cultural social and economic attitudes As an effect of the continuing globalization and the increased international interconnectedness there is generally a rising number of international free trade agreements among countries with the intention to achieve economic growth and welfare that on the other hand simultaneously led to an increased amount of criticism arising from non governmental organizations consumer protection organizations or environmental groups This oppositeness has received a lot of attention during the recent negotiations and implementation of the Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement CETA between the European Union and Canada Similar to the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership TTIP which is a foreseen free trade agreement between the European Union and the United States that has been temporarily suspended due to huge protests both agreements have in common that they bear more criticism than any other free trade agreement ever before This is why it is interesting to know to which degree there is a correlation of similarities and differences between a modern free trade agreement such as the CETA and an already established treaty like the North American Free Trade Agreement NAFTA between the United States Mexico and Canada According to the title there will be An analysis of the benefits and critique between the free trade agreements NAFTA and CETA in a historical comparison with the purpose of figuring out whether a certain contracting country is benefiting from the NAFTA or the CETA or if it is experiencing any social environmental cultural economic or other disadvantages In the following segments these aspects will be examined contrasted and evaluated with the support of studies and current data to provide meaningful findings and to give a final recommendation for action at the end of the paper The Anti-TTIP

Movement in Germany. The Role of Framing and Information and Communication Technologies in Mobilizing the Masses Katharina Lurz, 2018-07-04 Seminar paper from the year 2017 in the subject Economics Foreign Trade Theory Trade Policy grade 1 0 University of Bonn language English abstract This term paper will deal with the question how these anti TTIP groups and contestants have managed to mobilize citizens to such extents as international trade deals are not traditionally on the public agenda I argue that these organizations such as Campact Attac and Mehr Demokratie succeeded because they framed the issue in a way that struck a chord with the general public and the sensational online community which also tapped into existing narratives of anti globalization and distrust towards the establishment and because they made efficient and extensive use of new media technologies to spread these frames The focus will thus be on investigating the different framing techniques and processes that were applied by the movement as well as its inherent structure and how these factors were combined with the use of online media in an effort to challenge the European Commission of the trade deal With this combination of successful framing and use of online media they have managed to create an extensive base for protests against TTIP and CETA that has stifled the negotiations and final ratification for three years by now In this regard this paper will first elaborate on the different framing techniques that were applied by the protest leaders in light of existing narratives and discourses Following I will take a closer look at important NGOs such as Attac and Campact and protest groups such as Stop TTIP and TTIP unfairhandelbar TTIP non negotiable and their successes in organizing and getting people onto the streets Subsequent will be an examination of their use of online media and social media platforms that were employed to distribute these frames and mobilize the masses

What Do We Really Know About the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership Joanna Dzialo, 2018 Purpose The purpose of this work is to confront the social expectations of the TTIP and how it effects the so called expert knowledge Defining a mismatch between the social expectations and expert knowledge may contribute to better understanding of the controversies related to the TTIP Using the NAFTA case study we investigate if there is a significant gap between ex ante and ex post analysis of the Free Trade Agreement FTA Design methodology approach We rely on Eurobarometer 2014 2015 and Bertelsmann Foundation 2016 surveys to describe the TTIP related social expectations We make a critical overview of the global CGE models which are the main source of ex ante estimations of TTIP macro effects We also use the NAFTA case study as a TTIP reference point that allows for a comparison of ex ante with ex post analysis results Findings Social expectations regarding the economic effects of the TTIP are ambiguous on both sides of the Atlantic The CGE models have many limiting assumptions They are however a useful tool for exploring the effects of the TTIP bearing in mind all restrictions and limitations of ex ante analyses The NAFTA case study indicates that most ex ante models tend to overestimate benefits and underestimate disadvantages arising from free trade Research limitations implications Many such surveys have been conducted recently The results should be developed upon for a more detailed country specific and time variant understanding of possible sources of social conflicts in the context of the TTIP or FTA implementation Originality value The analysis tends to prove the existence of a mismatch between social and expert knowledge on the TTIP which may result in generating social conflicts A practical and original outcome of our work is a well supported recommendation to make the TTIP realistic effects much more transparent to the public which should be important to those supporting the TTIP and generally speaking FTA
