AN EDITORIAL

Choices difficult

Colony voters will face some difficult decisions when they choose a mayor and the first five members of their City Council on April 2.

Choices will often be hard because a number of well-qualified candidates have filed and more undoubtedly will do so.

Above all, other residents are interested and concerned over what first steps the city will take when its first legislative corps are taken. Most homeowners agree that it's an unusual opportunity to start from scratch and chart the destiny of a birth. And it is.

All candidates have expressed a desire to keep city expenses down and live within the city income without increasing burdens to residents.

The first mayor and aldermen will face the task in two areas:

1. When residents ask for more city services.

2. When public utilities ask for rate increases. Increased costs in Texas are here or on the way for electricity because of cold weather in the North which has drained natural gas from Texas where the low-state price is not regulated.

Responsible officials are faced and the Courier seeks to report the candidates' views accurately and fairly.

When a candidate files for election we will report his views on Colony issues and tell his or her background as it relates to the Colony. Basic views of candidates voiced at public meetings will be reported.

Letters to the editor up to 400 words will be welcomed once a month by candidates or their backers. They will be subject to editing if more space is short.

The Courier intends to run 100-word articles and questionnaires of all candidates about two weeks before the April 2 election.

Whoever the voters choose, the task of both and the ultimate is wisdom in launching a new city.

4 ask MUD seats

Four candidates had filed Wednesday seeking seats on the Board of the Colony Municipal Utilities District.

They are Art Wicky of 4620 Brandenburg, Lowell Barnett of 2548 Brandenburg Lane, Tim White of 4812 Ash Glen Lane, and Bob Fisk of 2009 Brandenburg. White is seeking re-election.

More details on the candidates will be given in next week's edition of the Courier. Voters will choose three members for the five-member board to serve five-year terms in the April 2 election.

Deadlines for candidates to file at the MUD office is 30 days before the election.

Frank Graham, MUD manager, said the names of MUD Board candidates would appear on the same ballot as residents seeking city office.

Gauden, Coats file Eight seek seats on city council

Two more candidates have filed for seats on the Colony's first City Council. They are Mark Coats and Joe L. Gauden.

There are now eight candidates seeking five City Council seats and two asking the mayor's job in the April 2 election. March 2 is the deadline for filing.

Gauden of 2009 Brandenburg Lane said his business experience would be of value to the new city. He is a sales representative for Cooney Servicing Company and was with the City of Dallas Services Department four years and with Dallas Power & Light for seven years.

Gauden also cites his contacts with municipal service institutions which would aid a new city.

He aims for a high level of city services such as police, administration, street control and public works within the constraints of the budget. Gauden would seek revenue through state and federal funding and would encourage business and industry to increase the property tax base.

Gauden would seek the advice of homeowners through the
