between them before the visitor from the West had been seated before the library fire and had sampled one of the elder Swift's good cigars. It is not only a future possibility, said the latter gentleman shrugging his shoulders. As far as the Hendrickton and Pas Alos Railroad Company goes, a two-mile-a-minute gait, not alone on a level track but through the Pas Alos Range, is an immediate necessity. It's got to be done now, or our stock will be selling on the curb for about two cents a share. You do not mean just that, do you? Mr. Bartholomew asked Tom Swift earnestly and staring at the big little man before the fire. Mr. Richard Bartholomew was just that, a big little man. In the railroad world, both in construction and management, he had made an enviable name for himself. He had actually built up the Hendrickton and Pas Alos from a narrow-gauge jerkwater road into a part of a great cross-continent system that tapped a wonderfully rich territory on both sides of the Pas Alos Range. For some years, the H. but I expect the Swift Construction Company to take anything I may say as said in confidence. We quite understand that, Mr. Bartholomew said the elder Swift softly. You can speak freely. Whether we do business or not, these walls are soundproof, and Tom and I can forget or remember as we wish. Of course, if we take up any work for you, we must confide to a certain extent in our close associates and trusted mechanics. Humphrey grunted, the visitor turning restlessly again in his chair. Then he said, I agree as to the necessity of that last statement, but I can only hope that these walls are soundproof. What's that demanded, Tom, rather sharply. He was a bright-looking young fellow with an alert air and a rather humorous smile. His father was a semi-invalid, but Tom possessed all the mental vigor and muscular energy that a young man should have. He had not neglected his athletic development while he made the best use of his mental powers. Tom Swift and His Big Tunnel

Victor Appleton, 1912-11-18. Tom Swift, seated in his laboratory, engaged in trying to solve a puzzling question that had arisen over one of his inventions, was startled by a loud knock on the door. So emphatic in fact was the summons that the door trembled, and Tom started to his feet in some alarm. Hello there, he cried. Don't break the door. Koku, and then he laughed. No, one but my giant would knock like that, he said to himself. He never does seem able to do things gently. But I wonder why he is knocking. I told him to get the engine out of the airship, and Eradicate said he'd be around to answer the telephone and bell. I wonder if anything has happened. Tom Swift and His Giant Cannon, Or, The Longest Shots on Record
