Concepts and Applications in Environmental Geochemistry Dibyendu Sarkar, Rupali Datta, Robyn Hannigan, 2011-09-14

This volume is for environmental researchers and government policy makers who are required to monitor environmental quality for their environmental investigators and remediation plans. It uses concepts and applications to aid in the exchange of scientific information across all the environmental science disciplines ranging from geochemistry to hydrogeology and ecology to biotechnology. Focusing on issues such as metals, organics, and nutrient contamination of water and soils and interactions between soil, water, plants, and chemicals, the book synthesizes the latest findings in this rapidly developing multi-disciplinary field. Cutting edge environmental analytical methods are also presented, making this a must have for professionals tasked with monitoring environmental quality. These concepts and applications help in decision making and problem solving in a single resource. Integrative approach promotes the exchange of scientific information among different disciplines. New concepts and case studies make the text unique among existing resources. Tremendous practical value in environmental quality and remediation with an emphasis on human health and ecological risk assessment. Quantitative

Garcia-Abril, 2016-04-19 Forest management has evolved from a mercantilist view to a multi functional one that integrates economic, social, and ecological aspects. However, the issue of sustainability is not yet resolved. Quantitative Techniques in Participatory Forest Management brings together global research in three areas: application, inventory of the forest variables that determine the main environmental indices, description and design of new environmental indices, and the application of sustainability indices for regional implementations. All these quantitative techniques create the basis for the development of scientific methodologies of participatory sustainable forest management. The Promise of ICTs in Asia
