Learning Journeys with ICT. Angie Simmons, 2006-01-01 Mind Expanding: Teaching For Thinking And Creativity In Primary Education Wegerif, Rupert, 2010-08-01 There is considerable interest in education around the world in flexible thinking and learning skills but very little consensus as to the nature of these skills and how best to promote them in schools This book puts forward a clear and practical framework for understanding thinking creativity and learning to learn as the fruits of engagement in dialogue It also outlines in detail how this framework can be applied to teaching across the curriculum at both primary and secondary level drawing on the best practices associated with the teaching thinking creativity and learning to learn movements explaining their success in terms of dialogic theory In particular the book incorporates aspects of a number of thinking skills approaches such as Lipman s Philosophy for Children approach as well as features of contemporary innovations in education such as assessment for learning and the development of creativity Each chapter opens with a vignette to set the scene and continue into a light and popularly written exposition of theory before moving on to a description of practice and concluding with practical guidelines for how to teach for thinking and creativity in schools and classrooms The first six chapters in the book have more of a focus on developing core theoretical themes and the following six chapters in the second half of the book focus more on practice led themes The relationship between theory and practice is treated as flexible and dynamic theory being developed by practice as much as practice implementing theory classroom practice Writing and Thinking with Computers Rick Monroe, 1993 Based on the premise that English and language arts curricula should be developed by committed teachers this book is designed to help teachers use computers in a seamless way Focusing on what and how students learn the book is a practical and progressive guide showing how technology can be infused into the English language arts curriculum without abandoning reading writing thinking listening and speaking The introduction to the book provides the philosophical framework and rationale for an application based computer curriculum to teach writing and thinking The first chapter presents sample computer writing and thinking lessons that range from the simple to the sophisticated The second chapter explains how to set up and manage a local area network a powerful learning environment The third chapter talks briefly about how to extend the uses of technology and invites the reader to imagine additional ways in which computers might extend what is already being practiced The final chapter includes some sample lessons for teachers and administrators interested in writing across the disciplines one of the richest uses of computer networks A description of learning log procedures and a list of 21 resources for teachers books journal articles periodicals and catalogs are attached RS Using Ict to Foster Higher Order Thinking in Learning

Mathematics Sun-Chung Lo, 2017-01-27 This dissertation Using ICT to Foster Higher Order Thinking in Learning Mathematics by Sun chung Lo was obtained from The University of Hong Kong Pokfulam Hong Kong and is being sold pursuant to Creative Commons Attribution 3.0 Hong Kong License The content of this dissertation has not been altered in any way We have altered the formatting in order to facilitate the ease of printing and reading of the dissertation All rights not granted by the above license are retained by the author Abstract Abstract This is a new era of information age the traditional chalk and talk approach in mathematics is seemed to be no longer an effective means to deliver mathematical concepts and unable to arouse students learning interest in mathematics One of the reasons why most of the students have difficulty in learning mathematic is originated from the weak or even lack of higher order thinking HOT skills The main purpose of this study is to find out whether students HOT can be fostered by the use of information and communication technology ICT in learning mathematics and determine which is the most effective way of using ICT to foster HOT in learning mathematics This study was done mainly qualitative supplemented with some part quantitative Totally 3 mathematics teachers and 103 students at secondary three level were invited to be the subjects of the study The topic selected for this study was plane geometry at secondary three level Software tool used in this study is JavaSketchpad which is a new product from the Key Curriculum Press Although JavaSketchpad is a subset of Geometer R Sketchpad it is free of charge for use in any non commercial purpose Teachers and students could view and control the objects on the sketch through mouse once they had a Java enabled browser and the interactive effects will be shown in a second In this study the Bloom taxonomy model Bloom 1956 was adapted and modified as the major methodology in the research framework Originally Bloom had identified six levels of abstraction however for the ease of investigation purpose two categories of i thinking levels were being used in this study The Level 1 Knowledge and Level 2 Comprehension were grouped together to form a Lower Level Thinking Group as it mainly involving knowledge recall and understanding of basic concepts The Level 3 Application Level 4 Analysis Level 5 Synthesis and Level 6 Evaluation were grouped together to form a Higher Level Thinking Group All questions in pre test and post test were therefore fallen into this framework The questions designed for Lower Level Thinking and Higher Level Thinking were then simplified as Type 1 question and Type 2 question respectively All questions for these two tests were designed and classified into either Type 1 or Type 2 and the total sum for each group was calculated Hence the test result was divided into two parts one for Type 1 and one for Type 2 the total sum for Type 1 questions represent score of lower level thinking while total sum of Type 2 questions represent score of higher level thinking The statistical method applied in this study was the Paired Samples T Test since the study was going to compare the means of two variables that represent the same or related group at different times In general teachers had no strong perception towards HOT and most of them stated that HOT should refer to all kind of thinking activities that require more than just direct recall of memory The result from pre test post test questionnaires interviews and in class observation shown positive response with the use of ICT to foster students HOT in learning mathematics It can be used as an evidence to show that the use of ICT can really foster students HOT in learning mathematics Students engaged in the study were willing to use ICT in mathematics lessons and it was found that the most effective wa
