Threats Without Enemies Facing Environmental Insecurity:

Threats Without Enemies Gwyn Prins, 1993 A series of essays arguing that the most serious threats the world faces today are not military but environmental

The Meaning of Environmental Security Jon Barnett, 2001 This book is a comprehensive critical discussion of the new idea of environmental security Jon Barnett looks at links between environmental degradation and national security But the meaning of the concept is ambiguous and an examination of its various interpretations and applications reveals much about the state of global environmental politics Barnett argues that environmental security is ultimately driven more by the power of security makers than by the need to address environmental problems By systematically uncovering the deficiencies of existing discourses he develops an alternative critical Green approach with practical implications

Security and the Environment Rita Floyd, 2010-05-06 In 1993 the first Clinton administration declared environmental security a national security issue but by the end of the Bush administrations environmental security had vanished from the government's agenda This book uses changing US environmental security policy to propose a revised securitisation theory one that both allows insights into the intentions of key actors and enables moral evaluations in the environmental sector of security Security and the Environment brings together the subject of environmental security and the Copenhagen School's securitisation theory Drawing on original interviews with former key players in United States environmental security Rita Floyd makes a significant and original contribution to environmental security studies and security studies more generally This book will be of interest to international relations scholars and political practitioners concerned with security as well as students of international environmental politics and US policy making

Environmental Change, Adaptation, and Security S. Lonergan, 2012-12-06 The chapters in this volume are edited versions of papers presented at the NATO Advanced Research Workshop on Environmental Change Adaptation and Security held in Budapest Hungary from October 16-18 1997 As is evident in this volume the papers ranged from descriptions of environmental and health issues in Russia and Eastern Europe to models of sustainable land use This diversity of perspectives on environment and security is indicative of both the breadth of this new area of research as well as the varied background of the researchers involved The discussions at the NATO workshop were remarkably animated and exciting not surprising given the interest in the topic I think this vitality is reflected in the papers in this volume as well The main purpose of the NATO ARW is to foster research links among researchers from NATO countries and Central and Eastern European States Russia and the Newly Independent States In editing this volume a decision was made to keep to the spirit of this purpose and if at all possible include all papers prepared for the workshop This required extensive editing and rewriting of some of the papers and consequent delays in production A determination was made early in the process by the workshop steering committee that the value of publishing the entire collection of articles outweighed the advantages of accepting only a limited number

Security and Environmental Change Simon Dalby, 2009-07-27 Simon Dalby provides an accessible and engaging account of the challenges we face in responding to security and environmental change He traces the historical roots of current thinking about security and climate change to show the roots of the contemporary concern

Environmental Security Simon Dalby, 2002 Since the end of the Cold War environmental matters especially the international implications of environmental degradation have figured prominently in debates about rethinking security But do the assumptions underlying such discussions hold up under close scrutiny In this first treatment of environmental security from a truly critical perspective Simon Dalby shows how attempts to explain contemporary insecurity falter over unexamined notions of both environment and security Adding environmental history aboriginal perspectives and geopolitics to the analysis explicitly suggests that the growing disruptions caused by a carbon fueled and expanding modernity are at the root of contemporary difficulties Environmental Security argues that rethinking security means revisiting the question of how we conceive identities as endangered and how we perceive threats to these identities The book clearly demonstrates that the conceptual basis for critical security studies requires an extended engagement with political theory and with the assumptions of the modern subject as progressive political agent Viewed thus on a global scale the environmental security discourse raises profoundly troubling political questions as to who we are and what kind of world we are collectively making in our efforts to be secure

International Boundaries and Environmental Security: Frameworks for Regional Cooperation Gerald Blake, 1997-08-15 Are international boundaries necessarily an obstacle to effective environmental management the ever increasing competition between states for access to natural resources may represent a threat not only to ecological stability but to regional and even global security Or perhaps transboundary environmental issues can actually have a positive impact on international relations encouraging states to cooperate and building confidence between previously hostile neighbours Drawing on a wide range of case studies The papers in this volume explore these important issues from a multi disciplinary perspective Contributions from practitioners and technical experts complement detailed studies by geographers lawyers and political scientists This mix yields a unique survey of 1 problems when environmental systems cross international borders and 2 transboundary cooperative projects designed to reduce the threat of ecological catastrophe and political conflict between competing neighbours around the world The conclusion Despite the daunting challenges there exist grounds for optimism This collection is based on the proceedings of an international conference held in Singapore in June 1995 co hosted by the Centre for Advanced Studies And The Department of Geography National University of Singapore And The International Boundaries Research Unit University of Durham United Kingdom and is essential reading for anyone interested in understanding the complex relationship between boundaries environment and international security

International Environmental Law, Policy, and Ethics Alexander Gillespie, 1997 This study of international environmental ethics shows how nations are creating environmental laws and policies which are continually inviting failure since such laws are riddled with inconsistencies and are contradictory in purpose

The Environmental Management Handbook Bernard

Taylor,1994 A guide which gives practical advice to business professionals and managers on how to clean up their companies operations and how to behave responsibly and run a profitable business Institutional Issues and Perspectives in the Management of Fisheries and Coastal Resources in Southeast Asia Magnus Torell,Albert M. Salamanca,2001 Social Justice ,1996 ThirdWay ,1994-01 Monthly current affairs magazine from a Christian perspective with a focus on politics society economics and culture Global Forests and International Environmental Law Canadian Council Of International Law Staff,1996-03-11 This collection of essays is the fruit of a special project within the General Research Programme of the Canadian Council on International Law The volume constitutes the first comprehensive analysis of the status and treatment of forests as a subject of study in the field of international law It is hoped that the publication and dissemination of these essays will stimulate not only further study and analysis but also appropriate international and domestic policy initiatives that will contribute To The realization of a global forests convention The common theme of the papers is the prospect of an International Forests Convention but the diverse and complementary perspectives offered on this prominent d nouement of UNCED also contain useful general analyses independent of the UNCED agenda Environmental Victims Christopher Williams,1998 Hit a child s head with a hammer causing intellectual impairment and the event is seen as a question of justice with medicine attempting to heal the damage Drive a car with leaded petrol causing intellectual impairment in countless children and the outcome is seen only as a medical problem redress being unlikely Environmental Victims challenges the concepts that have created such a warped view of environmentally mediated injury The book draws attention to environmental victims whether high profile cases such as that exposed by Ken Saro Wiwa in Nigeria or the nameless statistics of raised cancer and respiratory disease rates It also highlights invisible hazards such as exposure to neurotoxins and genotoxins which may cause heritable DNA changes in polluted air contaminated food and drinking water workplace hazards radiation from weapons testing and power generation and industrial pollution including major industrial disasters such as at Bougainville and Bhopal It examines existing scientific legal and public perceptions provides a set of illuminating case studies and offers solutions to ensuring human well being in the face of environmental impacts

Demilitarisation and Peace-building in Southern Africa: Concepts and processes Peter Batchelor,Kees Kingma,Guy Lamb,2004 Volume I provides a conceptual framework for the analysis of demilitarization and peace building processes applicable particularly in the Southern Africa context This volume argues that a broad concept of peace building has to take into account economic political social and cultural factors at the local national and regional level Security Issues in the Post-cold War World M. Jane Davis,1996 Security Issues in the Post Cold War World focuses on the changing international security agenda and the serious political instabilities many rooted in ethnic nationalisms and long standing border disputes which have resurfaced with the end of the Cold War RSA Journal Royal Society of Arts (Great
