The Future Conditions 100-Year Flood Elevation Map is intended to advance the resiliency efforts in Broward County by setting the foundation to improve standards for flood protection. The flood elevation mapping results (representing a 1% annual chance during years 2060-2069) are intended to serve as the basis for establishing future finished floor elevations for new buildings and major redevelopments in the County. The map was developed through integrated hydrologic modeling of surface and groundwater, incorporating future land use changes, projected sea level rise, rainfall intensification, and seasonal high tide to predict future flood conditions.
