Trading With the Far East (Classic Reprint) Oscar Phelps Austin, 2015-07-08 Excerpt from Trading With the Far East The terms Asia and Europe applied by the Phoenicians and later by the Greeks to the sections occupying respectively the areas at the east and the west were intended only as general designations for those respective sections but have been retained as their permanent geographic names while the general title now given by geographers to the Great Continent comprising both Europe and Asia is Eurasia Its area combining the two sections which we call Europe and Asia is 21 000 000 square miles or 40% of the land surface of the world and its population 1 350 000 000 or 75% of that of the entire globe The boundary between Asia and Europe as generally accepted by geographers is the Ural Mountains and River at the north the Caspian Sea the Caucasus Mountains the Black Sea and the Dardanelles Interior Sparsely Settled The interior of the Asiatic continent lying behind the narrow and densely populated coastal region running along the Indian and Pacific oceans consists of deserts and semi deserts in the central part frozen tundras at the extreme north and at the south great mountain ranges whose enormous areas and extreme altitude have given to a certain section thereof the title of The Roof of the World This great interior which lies at an average level of about 15 000 feet above the sea receives little moisture from the oceans and is at the best but sparsely populated Mongolia averaging little more than one person per square mile Chinese Turkestan two per square mile Siberia two per square mile and Tibet four per square mile About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Trading with the Far East Oscar Phelps Austin, New York. Asian Classics on the Victorian Bookshelf Alexander Bubb,2023-03-14 The interest among Victorian readers in classical literature from Asia has been greatly underestimated The popularity of the Arabian Nights and The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam is well documented Yet this was also an era in which freethinkers consulted the Quran in which schoolchildren were given abridgements of the Ramayana to read in which names like Kalidasa and Firdusi were carved on the fa ades of public libraries and in which women s book clubs discussed Japanese poetry But for the most part such readers were not consulting the specialist publications of scholarly orientalists What then were the translations that catalysed these intercultural encounters Based on a unique methodology marrying translation theory with empirical techniques developed by historians of reading this book shines light for the first time on the numerous amateur translators or popularizers who were responsible for making these texts accessible and disseminating them to the Victorian general readership Asian Classics on the Victorian Bookshelf explains the process whereby popular translations were written published distributed to bookshops and libraries and ultimately consumed by readers It uses the working papers and correspondence of popularizers to demonstrate their techniques and motivations while the responses of contemporary readers are traced through the pencil marginalia they left behind in dozens of original copies In spite of their typically limited knowledge of source languages Asian Classics argues that popularizers produced versions more respectful of the complexity cultural difference and fundamental untranslatability of Asian texts than the professional orientalists whose work they were often adapting The responses of their readers likewise frequently deviated from interpretive norms and it is proposed that this combination of eccentric translators and unorthodox readers triggered flights of translation whereby historical individuals can be seen to escape the hegemony of orientalist forms of knowledge

,1918 Portuguese Trade in Asia Under the Habsburgs, 1580-1640 James C. Boyajian,2008-02-04 This fascinating history

reassesses the consequences of Portugal's flourishing private trade with Asia including increased tensions between the growing urban merchant class and the still dominant landed aristocracy James C Boyajian shows how Portuguese Asian commerce formed part of a global trading network that linked not only Europe and Asia but also for the first time Asia West Africa Brazil and Spanish America He also argues that contrary to previous scholarly opinion nearly half of the Portuguese Asian trade was controlled by New Christians descendants of Iberian Jews forcibly converted to Christianity in the 1490s

The Bookman's Journal and Print Collector Wilfred Partington,1927 Handbook of Alternative Theories of Economic Development Erik S. Reinert,Jayati Ghosh,Rainer Kattel,2016-09-28 The Handbook of Alternative Theories of Economic Development explores the theories and approaches which over a prolonged period of time have existed as viable alternatives to today's mainstream and neo classical tenets With a total of 40 specially commissioned chapters written by the foremost authorities in their respective fields this volume represents a landmark in the field of economic development It elucidates the richness of the alternative and sometimes misunderstood ideas which in different historical contexts have proved to be vital to the improvement of the human condition The subject matter is approached from several complementary perspectives From a historical angle the Handbook charts the mercantilist and cameralist theories that emerged from the Renaissance and developed further during the Enlightenment From a geographical angle it includes chapters on African Chinese Indian and Muslim approaches to economic development Different schools are also explored and discussed including nineteenth century US development theory Marxist Schumpeterian Latin American structuralism regulation theory and world systems theories of development In addition the Handbook has chapters on important events and institutions including The League of Nations The Havana Charter and UNCTAD as well as on particularly influential development economists Contemporary topics such as the role of finance feminism the agrarian issue and ecology and the environment are also covered in depth This comprehensive Handbook offers an unrivalled review and analysis of alternative and heterodox theories of economic development It should be read by all serious scholars teachers and students of development studies and indeed anyone interested in alternatives to development orthodoxy Intra-Asian Trade and Industrialization A.J.H.
