Transitional Justice In Rwanda Accountability For Atrocity:

Transitional Justice in Rwanda Gerald Gahima, 2013-02-15 This book comprehensively analyzes the full range of the transitional justice processes undertaken for the Rwandan genocide Drawing on the author's extensive professional experience as the principal justice policy maker and the leading law enforcement officer in Rwanda from 1996-2003 the book provides an in depth analysis of the social political and legal challenges faced by Rwanda in the aftermath of the genocide and the aspirations and legacy of transitional justice The book explores the role played by the accountability processes not just in pursuing accountability but also in shaping the reconstruction of Rwanda's institutions of democratic governance and political reconciliation Central to this exploration will be the examination of whether or not transitional justice in Rwanda has contributed to a foundational rule of law reform process While recognizing the necessity of pursuing accountability for mass atrocity the book argues that a maximal approach to accountability for genocide may undermine the promotion of core objectives of transitional justice Taking on one of the key questions facing practitioners and scholars of transitional justice today the book suggests that the pursuit of mass accountability particularly where socio economic resources and legal capacity is limited may destabilize the process of rule of law reform endangering core human rights norms Moreover the book suggests that pursuing a strategy of mass accountability may undermine the process of democratic transition particularly in a context where impunity for crimes committed by the victors of armed conflicts persists Highlighting the ongoing democratic deficit in Rwanda and resulting political instability in the Great Lakes region the book argues that the effectiveness of transitional justice ultimately hinges on the nature and success of political transition

Negotiating Genocide in Rwanda Erin Jessee, 2017-01-20 This book is an oral history based study of the politics of history in the aftermath of the 1994 genocide in Rwanda Using life history and thematic interviews the author brings the narratives of officials survivors returnees perpetrators and others whose lives have been intimately affected by genocide into conversation with scholarly studies of the Rwandan genocide and Rwandan history more generally In doing so she explores the following questions How do Rwandans use history to make sense of their experiences of genocide and related mass atrocities And to what end In the aftermath of such violence how do people's interpretations of the varied forms of suffering they endured then influence their ability to envision and support a peaceful future for their nation that includes multi ethnic cooperation

Theorizing Transitional Justice Claudio Corradetti, Nir Eisikovits, 2016-02-17 This book addresses the theoretical underpinnings of the field of transitional justice something that has hitherto been lacking both in study and practice With the common goal of clarifying some of the theoretical profiles of transitional justice strategies the study is organized along crucial intersections evaluating aspects connected to the genealogy the nature the scope and the most appropriate methodology for the study of transitional justice The chapters also take up normative and political considerations pertaining to specific transitional instruments such as war crime tribunals truth commissions administrative purges reparations and historical commissions Bringing together some of the most original writings from established experts as well as from promising young scholars in the field the collection will be an essential resource for researchers academics and policy makers in Law Philosophy Politics and Sociology

Localising Memory in Transitional Justice Mina Rauschenbach, Julia Viebach, Stephan Parmentier, 2022-05-30 This collection adds to the critical transitional justice scholarship that calls for transitional justice from below and that makes visible the complex and oftentimes troubled entanglements between justice endeavours locality and memory making Broadening this perspective it explores informal memory practices across various contexts with a focus on their individual and collective dynamics and their intersections reaching also beyond a conceptualisation of memory as mere symbolic reparation and politics of memory It seeks to highlight the hidden unwritten and multifaceted in today's memory boom by focusing on the memorialisation practices of communities activists families and survivors Organising its analytical focal point around the localisation of memory it offers valuable and new insights on how and under what conditions localised memory practices may contribute to recognition and social transformation as well as how they may at best be inclusive or exclusive of dynamic and diverse memories Drawing on inter and multi disciplinary approaches this book brings an in depth and nuanced understanding of local memory practices and the dynamics attached to these in transitional justice contexts It will be of much interest to students and scholars of memory and genocide studies peace and conflict studies transitional justice sociology and anthropology
