Transnational Television History Andreas Fickers, Catherine Johnson, 2013-09-13 Although television has developed into a major agent of the transnational and global flow of information and entertainment television historiography and scholarship largely remains a national endeavour partly due to the fact that television has been understood as a tool for the creation of national identity But the breaking of the quasi monopoly of public service broadcasters all over Europe in the 1980s has changed the television landscape and cross border television channels with the help of satellite and the Internet have catapulted the relatively closed television nations into the universe of globalized media channels At least this is the picture painted by the popular meta narratives of European television history Transnational Television History asks us to re evaluate the function of television as a medium of nation building in its formative years and to reassess the historical narrative that insists that European television only became transnational with the emergence of more commercial services and new technologies from the 1980s It also questions some common assumptions in television historiography by offering some alternative perspectives on the complex processes of transnational circulation of television technology professionals programmes and aesthetics This book was originally published as a special issue of Media History

Transnational European Television Drama Ib Bondebjerg, Eva Novrup Redvall, Rasmus Helles, Signe Sophus Lai, Henrik Søndergaard, Cecilie Astrupgaard, 2017-11-09 This book deals with the role of television drama in Europe as enabler of transnational cultural encounters for audiences and the creative community It demonstrates that the diversity of national cultures is a challenge for European TV drama but also a potential richness and source of creative variation Based on data on the production distribution and reception of recent TV drama from several European countries the book presents a new picture of the transnational European television culture The authors analyse main tendencies in television policy and challenges for national broadcasters coming from new global streaming services Comparing cases of historical contemporary and crime drama from several countries this study shows the importance of creative co production and transnational mediated cultural encounters between national cultures of Europe
