G. Villa, Ana G. Abril, 2025-06-23 The book is intended to be used by both students and experts in the covered fields It consists of an updated view as far as anticancer or antibacterial activities are concerned of onions It also approaches the bacterial toxins as important actors of syndromes and disease in humans as well as the description in an updated fashion of a new form of fighting the microbial infections such as pyroptosis The book goes then into the several ways that we have to render the microbial pathogens susceptible to antimicrobials as well as new possibilities to overcome the development of resistances to new antibiotics The main objective of this book is to provide both a background and an update on some critical areas of microbiology currently affecting our health and welfare The book contains enough classical and new materials in different fields of Microbiology including viruses food caused allergies resistance to antimicrobials and how to cope with them

Current Topics in Microbiology and Immunology / Ergebnisse der Microbiologie und Immunitätsforschung W. Arber, W. Henle, P. H. Hofschneider, J. H. Humphrey, N. K. Jerne, P. Koldovský, H. Koprowski, O. Maaløe, R. Rott, H. G. Schweiger, M. Sela, L. Syru?ek, P. K. Vogt, 2012-12-06 Expression of an immune response is the net result of complex synergistic and antagonistic activities performed by a variety of cell types It includes macrophages T and B populations which may interact in performance of a response and suppressor cells interfering with it Accordingly a lack of response may not necessarily indicate absence of immunocompetent cells but rather nonexpression of competence Thus one should consider two possible situations which are by no means mutually exclusive to account for immunologic unresponsiveness a one or more of the cell populations composing the synergistic unit is absent or immature and b an antagonistic unit which interferes with the response is dominating In view of this an approach to development of immune reactivity necessitates parallel surveys of development of cells with the potential to perform as well as of cells which can suppress the response Classification of the various cell types has been based so far on their phenotypic properties e g membrane antigen markers cell receptors production and secretion of immunoglobulins etc Genotypically T and B cells may represent either separate independent cell lines or different stages of development within the same cell lineage Current Topics in Microbiology and Immunology M.
