Affective Labour in British and American Women's Fiction, 1848-1915 Katherine Skaris, 2018-07-26 This volume is a comprehensive and transatlantic literary study of women s nineteenth and twentieth century fiction Firstly it introduces and explores the concept of women s affective labour and examines literary representations of this work in British and American fiction written by women between 1848 and 1915 Secondly it revives largely ignored texts by the scribbling women of Britain and America such as Mary Elizabeth Braddon Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Mona Caird and Mary Hunter Austin and rereads established authors such as Elizabeth Gaskell Kate Chopin and Edith Wharton to demonstrate how all these works provide valuable insights into women s lives in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Finally by adopting the lens of affective labour the study explores the ways in which women were portrayed as striving for self fulfilment through forms of emotional mental and creative endeavours that have not always been fully appreciated as work in critical accounts of nineteenth and twentieth century fiction

The Naturewoman Upton Sinclair, 2021-04-25 In The Naturewoman Upton Sinclair intricately weaves a narrative that explores the themes of human connection to nature societal norms and the quest for authenticity in a rapidly industrializing world The book published in 1926 employs a rich descriptive literary style reminiscent of Sinclair s earlier works blending sociopolitical commentary with a vividly drawn backdrop of rural America This pastoral tale contrasts sharply with the industrialized landscapes often depicted in Sinclair s more famous novels reflecting a profound ambivalence toward modernity while heralding the triumph of human dignity and natural beauty over mechanization Upton Sinclair a renowned American author and social reformer is perhaps best known for his investigative works like The Jungle His deep seated commitment to social justice and a critique of capitalism often informs his literary endeavors The Naturewoman arose from Sinclair s experiences with the natural world and his desire to express the significance of a simpler more authentic life as a counterpoint to the dehumanizing effects of industrial society a theme resonant in his broader oeuvre This novel is highly recommended for readers seeking to delve into the early 20th century American experience offering a profound reflection on human existence and the environment Sinclair's poignant prose and argument for a return to nature make The Naturewoman not just a story but a call to reconnect with one's roots in a world that often prioritizes progress over preservation

American Literary History and the Turn toward Modernity Melanie V. Dawson, Meredith L. Goldsmith, 2018-08-10 Approaching the period of 1880-1930 in American literature as one in which the processes of rethinking the past were as prevalent as wholly new works of art this collection treats the century's long turn as a site that overtly staged the tension among conflicting sets of values those of past present and the imagined future As the authors of this collection demonstrate the literature from the century's turn is irreducible to the characteristics either of the nineteenth or the twentieth centuries rather it is literature of dual practices and multiple values that embodies elastic qualities of historical plurality a true literature in transition
