Women Creating Lives Identities Resilience And Resistance:

Innovations in Feminist Psychological Research Ellen B. Kimmel, 1999 What are the best ways to do research on the psychology of women and gender Within feminist psychology there is a great deal of methodological creativity and diversity This volume highlights how familiar methods such as focus groups can be brought to bear on feminist issues It demonstrates less common methods such as Q sort phenomenological analysis concept mapping and discourse analysis Moreover it explores the role of personal values interpersonal dynamics and sociopolitical influences on the research process Over 60 international contributors share insights into adolescent girls and adult women s sexuality violence and its prevention life patterns and narratives the teaching research nexus gender and race in clinical practice and more Included is a comprehensive resource guide for research publication and teaching on methodological diversity Women Creating Lives Carol E. Franz, Abigail J. Stewart, 1994-06-05 There is no other published book in English studying the constitution of the Roman Republic as a whole Yet the Greek historian Polybius believed that the constitution was a fundamental cause of the exponential growth of Rome s empire He regarded the Republic as unusual in two respects first because it functioned so well despite being a mix of monarchy oligarchy and democracy secondly because the constitution was the product of natural evolution rather than the ideals of a lawgiver Even if historians now seek more widely for the causes of Rome s rise to power the importance and influence of her political institutions remains The reasons for Rome s power are both complex on account of the mix of elements and flexible inasmuch as they were not founded on written statutes but on unwritten traditions reinterpreted by successive generations Knowledge of Rome s political institutions is essential both for ancient historians and for those who study the contribution of Rome to the republican tradition of political thought from the Middle Ages to the revolutions inspired by the Enlightenment Revising Herself : Women's Identity from College to Midlife Ruthellen Josselson Professor of Psychology Towson State University, 1996-11-07 In 1972 Ruthellen Josselson was a young psychologist fascinated by the riddle of how a woman creates an identity and chooses one path over another in life particularly in the face of the nascent feminist movement which challenged as never before the traditional role models of earlier generations Selecting at random thirty young women in their last year of college Josselson undertook a ground breaking study that would follow these women s personal odysseys over the next twenty two years from graduation to midlife What she learned about the ways women reinvent themselves in an ever changing world is the subject of Revising Herself a myth shattering look at both a unique generation of American women on the front lines of wrenching social change and at the conflicts and compromises facing women today With stunning candor and hard won insight the ordinary and anonymous women in Josselson s study reveal how much more complex and interesting real women s lives are than the one dimensional stereotypes often portrayed in the media Dismissing a traditional stage theory of development as overly simplistic Josselson identifies four trajectories that women take from adolescence to adulthood Guardians are the good girls high achieving and committed to fulfilling their family's expectations but rigid in outlook and resistant to change Pathmakers are not afraid of risk or commitment striving to balance their own needs with others The often idealistic Searchers are overwhelmed by choice and unable to make commitments while Drifters live only for the moment avoiding choice and an exploration of identity Reflecting the degree to which women take risks make choices and form commitments these paths form a foundation for adulthood but they also lead to surprises at midlife Guardians seem strikingly able to cut loose from earlier traditional patterns while many Drifters have found themselves sometimes in quite traditional ways And coming of age just as the feminist movement gathered momentum the women in Josselson's study were the first to confront many contemporary issues not faced by their mothers or their mothers' mothers How does an Irish Catholic contemplate an abortion How does a woman whose parents believe education is wasted on a daughter find the will to apply to medical school In examining these questions and others Josselson shows that the forging of a woman's identity whatever her path is ongoing a balancing of the need for self assertion against the equally compelling need for relationships Women create their identities along the seams of both competence and connection and continually revise what they have made Allowing women to define themselves in their own terms Revising Herself holds up a provocative mirror in which readers can reflect upon their own life choices Whether a Guardian Pathmaker Searcher or Drifter readers will recognize themselves in these women's experiences and gain new insight into how we construct our identities over a lifetime

Latina Realities Oliva Espin, 2018-02-20 This book emphasizes psychology's role as a means of human welfare focusing on the complexities of the psychological development of immigrant women Latinas and other women of color and issues relevant to providing psychological services to them

Pride in the Projects Nancy L. Deutsch, 2008-07-12 Teens in America's inner cities grow up and construct identities amidst a landscape of relationships and violence support and discrimination games and gangs In such contexts local environments such as after school programs may help youth to mediate between social stereotypes and daily experience or provide space for them to consider themselves as contributing members of a community Based on four years of field work with both the adolescent members and staff of an inner city youth organization in a large Midwestern city Pride in the Projects examines the construction of identity as it occurs within this local context emphasizing the relationships within which identities are formed Drawing on research in psychology sociology education and race and gender studies the volume highlights the inadequacies in current identity development theories expanding our understanding of the lives of urban teens and the ways in which interpersonal connections serve as powerful contexts for self construction The adolescents' stories illuminate how they find ways to discover who they are and who they would like to be in positive and healthy ways in the face of very real obstacles The book closes with implications for practice alerting scholars educators practitioners and concerned citizens of the positive developmental possibilities inherent in youth settings when we pay attention to the voices of youth

Charting Women's Journeys Judith Grant, 2008-01-01 Charting Women's Journeys is about the meaning of addiction and recovery in the lives of twenty five Appalachian women who have been practicing abstinence from the use of alcohol and or drugs for eighteen months or more in a small rural community in the United States The empirical focus is on the ways in which these women s lives have been transformed through the processes of addiction to and abstinence from these substances Women Crossing Boundaries Oliva Espin,2013-08-21 First published in 1999 This book looks at the
