From the Fire Hills Chad Davidson, 2014-03-06 In From the Fire Hills poet Chad Davidson shows us an Italy that is far from the romanticized notions of sun drenched fields and self discovery Instead we see a maelstrom of chaos and contradiction a place where the frenetic pace of modernity is locked in a daily struggle with recalcitrant history This autobiographical collection explores the myriad ways in which Italian culture survives its own parodies and evokes a modern ferocity that harkens back to Italy's barbarian past As the narrator rendered vulnerable by language embarks on his journey lines of location time and perception blur From the siren song of Dante's grave to the heights of San Luca from streets where policemen with Uzis tread a hair's breadth away from the macabre remains of Capuchin monks Davidson's Italy is a study in contrast between the contemporary and the classical the sacred and the profane Within these poems sensual and savage revelations unfold exposing new uncanny and often uncomfortable spaces to explore in this well traveled realm of Western imagination Throughout the volume loom the fire hills the scorched mountains of Sicily in summer the memories of Italians living near the Gothic Line outside Bologna where the Germans dug in and received heavy bombing at the close of World War II even the wildfires igniting the San Gabriel foothills in southern California all the way back to the burning city of Carthage in Virgil's Aeneid As the ash settles and the smoke clears we realize that what we remember is often just remains shells and burned out wreckage as if there were another type of memory
