The White Possessive Aileen Moreton-Robinson, 2015-05-15 The White Possessive explores the links between race sovereignty and possession through themes of property owning property being property and becoming propertyless Focusing on the Australian Aboriginal context Aileen Moreton Robinson questions current race theory in the first world and its preoccupation with foregrounding slavery and migration The nation she argues is socially and culturally constructed as a white possession Moreton Robinson reveals how the core values of Australian national identity continue to have their roots in Britishness and colonization built on the disavowal of Indigenous sovereignty Whiteness studies literature is central to Moreton Robinson's reasoning and she shows how blackness works as a white epistemological tool that bolsters the social production of whiteness displacing Indigenous sovereignties and rendering them invisible in a civil rights discourse thereby sidestepping thorny issues of settler colonialism Throughout this critical examination Moreton Robinson proposes a bold new agenda for critical Indigenous studies one that involves deeper analysis of how the prerogatives of white possession function within the role of disciplines

Talkin' Up to the White Woman Aileen Moreton-Robinson, 2021-10-12 A twentieth anniversary edition of this tour de force in feminism and Indigenous studies now with a new preface The twentieth anniversary of the original publication of this influential and prescient work is commemorated with a new edition of Talkin Up to the White Woman by Aileen Moreton Robinson In this bold book of its time and ahead of its time whiteness is made visible in power relations presenting a dialogic of how white feminists represent Indigenous women in discourse and how Indigenous women self present Moreton Robinson argues that white feminists benefit from colonization they are overwhelmingly represented and disproportionately predominant play the key roles and constitute the norm the ordinary and the standard of womanhood They do not self present as white but rather represent themselves as variously classed sexualized aged and abled The disjuncture between representation and self presentation of Indigenous women and white feminists illuminates different epistemologies and an incommensurability in the social construction of gender Not so much a study of white womanhood Talkin Up to the White Woman instead reveals an invisible racialized subject position represented and deployed in power relations with Indigenous women The subject position occupied by middle class white women is embedded in material and discursive conditions that shape the nature of power relations between white feminists and Indigenous women and the unjust structural relationship between white society and Indigenous society

Indigenous Cities Laura M. Furlan, 2017-11 In Indigenous Cities Laura M Furlan demonstrates that stories of the urban experience are essential to an understanding of modern Indigeneity She situates Native identity among theories of diaspora cosmopolitanism and transnationalism by examining urban narratives such as those written by Sherman Alexie Janet Campbell Hale Louise Erdrich and Susan Power along with the work of filmmakers and artists In these stories Native peoples navigate new surroundings find and reformulate community and maintain and redefine Indian identity in the postrelocation era These narratives illuminate the changing relationship between urban Indigenous peoples and their tribal nations and territories and the ways in which new cosmopolitan bonds both reshape and are interpreted by tribal identities Though the majority of American Indigenous populations do not reside on reservations these spaces regularly define discussions and literature about Native citizenship and identity Meanwhile conversations about the shift to urban settings often focus on elements of dispossession subjectivity and assimilation Furlan takes a critical look at Indigenous fiction from the last three decades to present a new way of looking at urban experiences one that explains mobility and relocation as a form of resistance In these stories Indian bodies are not bound by state imposed borders or confined to Indian Country as it is traditionally conceived Furlan demonstrates that cities have always been Indian land and Indigenous peoples have always been cosmopolitan and urban
