

Structuring a Live Theatre Essay

Example provocative statement:

'Technology is more important in live theatre today than the play itself.'

Introduction

Outline what you saw, offer some precise adjectives to describe the production (what was the artistic intention? To educate, challenge, provoke, etc), outline your argument (that technology enhances storytelling, but that there are other elements - acting, direction, design, etc) that are as important when bringing a play to life. Aim for balance.

Paragraph one

1. Choose a technical key moment, e.g. lighting & sound working together; projection; revolve/hydraulic, set transitions
2. Break it down (tiny pieces) as it unfolded to you as an audience member (analysis)
3. Explain its effects on you (evaluation)
4. Any practitioner link? Artaud? Integrate practitioner ideas into key moment (analysis and evaluation)
5. Choose a character who lives through this key moment, explain how the actor gave the character depth - break down the performance to voice, body and use of space (analysis)
