Jordan, 2014-09-15 Recent decades have seen an increasing interest in the healing and therapeutic potential of nature and interest in the potential of greencare interventions for the benefit of mental health. The field of nature based therapies is expanding in line with this interest. Nature and Therapy offers a unique contribution by outlining the specific processes involved in conducting counselling and psychotherapy sessions in outdoor natural environments. Central areas covered in the book include: A thorough exploration of the evidence for the psychological and healing potential of natural spaces; Developing a therapeutic rationale for nature based therapeutic work; Understanding the therapeutic relationship and the unique therapeutic processes that come into play in outdoor natural spaces; Translating indoor therapeutic work to outdoor contexts; The practicalities of setting up and running a therapy session outside of a room environment; Experiential exercises to explore the therapeutic potential of nature. Martin Jordan offers a clear outline of how to set up and hold a therapeutic session outdoors. Using case examples, Nature and Therapy explores both the practicalities and the therapeutic processes that come into play in an outdoor natural setting. The book will be of use to counsellors, psychotherapists, arts therapists, psychologists and health professionals who are interested in taking their therapeutic work into natural environments and outdoor spaces. Innovative Interventions in Child and Adolescent Mental Health Christine Lynn Norton, 2010-09-13

Controversial Issues in Adventure

Programming Bruce Martin, Mark Wagstaff, 2012-05-04 Controversial Issues in Adventure Programming offers an engaging approach to the consideration of enduring current and emerging issues in the field. Written primarily for upper level undergraduate and graduate students, the text presents 20 issues in a debate format challenging students to participate in critical discourse concerning these issues as practitioners in the field of adventure programming. Respected authors Bruce Martin and Mark Wagstaff have assembled a team of more than 50 contributors from around the globe to reassess some of the underlying assumptions on which adventure programming is based. They have critically examined implications of new developments for emerging practice and discussed how best to position the field of adventure programming in addressing broader societal concerns. To set the stage for the debate, each issue is prefaced with a general overview including the evolution of the issue and its significance in light of broader social concerns. Then contributors present the pros and cons of each issue. A debate format helps students develop an understanding of the key points around each issue while also becoming familiar with current research pertinent to these issues. This approach also encourages students to grapple with these issues and begin to develop their own informed thoughtful perspectives as they prepare for careers in adventure programming. Controversial Issues in Adventure Programming is divided into two parts. Part I begins by discussing issues of ongoing concern in the field including the certification debate, motorized versus nonmotorized forms of outdoor recreation, and program accreditation. In part II, contemporary and emerging issues are presented such as the use of online educational programming in the field of adventure programming. As a reference for practitioners and policy makers, Controversial Issues in Adventure Programming offers new and updated perspectives on enduring and emerging issues as well as a synthesis of the most recent related scholarly literature. In addition, the text serves as a resource in understanding how the adventure programming industry can contribute to addressing issues of broad concern in society such as public health, global climate change, stewardship of public lands and waterways, and education reform. Controversial Issues in Adventure Programming encourages readers to participate in some of the central debates occurring in the field. In particular, this timely resource will help students broaden their understanding of the field as they critically examine and respond to a range of enduring contemporary and emerging topics in adventure programming.

The Palgrave International Handbook of Women and Outdoor Learning Tonia Gray, Denise Mitten, 2018-05-12 This Handbook serves as a starting point for critical analysis and discourse about the status of women in outdoor learning environments (OLEs). Women choose to participate actively in outdoors careers, many believing the profession is a level playing field and that it offers alternatives to traditional sporting activities. They enter outdoor learning primarily on the strength of their enthusiasm for leading and teaching in natural environments and assume the field is inclusive, rewarding excellence regardless of age, gender, socioeconomic status, disability, or ethnicity. However, both research and collective experiences in OLEs suggest that many women feel invisible, relegated, marginalized and undervalued In response to this marginalization this Handbook celebrates the richness of knowledge and practices of women practitioners in OLEs Women scholars and practitioners from numerous fields such as experiential outdoor education adventure education adventure therapy and gender studies explore the implications of their research and practice using poignant examples within their own disciplines These insights emerge from similar life experiences as women and outdoor leaders in the 1970s to the present Social inequalities still abound in OLEs and the Handbook ensures that the contributions of women are highlighted as well as the work that needs to be done to make these spaces inclusive Global in perspective and capacious in content this one stop volume is an indispensable reference resource for a diverse range of academics including students and researchers in the fields of education psychology sociology gender studies geography and environment studies as well as the many outdoors fields

International Perspectives on Child and Adolescent Mental Health N. Singh, Dee Pang, A. Singh, 2000-06-01 There has been a major shift in the way we conceptualize and provide services to children and adolescents with mental health needs We are moving away from the traditional disorder oriented model of treatment to a child centered family focused service delivery system that mandates mental health services in the context of the child's family and social ecology This new system of care has spawned many variations of the model including wraparound services multisystemic treatment MST futures planning and person centred planning As systems of care are different across countries and cultures it is imperative that we share our knowledge and make explicit the lessons we have learned in our attempts to provide services to children and adolescents which focus on improving their quality of life rather than merely treating their psychiatric disorders and psychological problems There is an urgent need to evaluate the various treatments being offered to children and adolescents with mental health needs Empirical data on outcomes will determine the funding and delivery of services As such the latest research on treatment outcomes needs to be disseminated so that new and validated treatment methods can be implemented rapidly

Resources in Education, 1997 What Else Works? Jo

Brayford, Francis B Cowe, John Deering, 2013-05-13 What Else Works has developed out of a growing awareness amongst practitioners that centralized notions of what works and one size fits all approaches to work with offenders and other groups is inevitably limited in its scope and effectiveness The book seeks to dispel the view of probation service users as offenders and socially excluded people as problems to be managed and treated and instead considers more creative alternatives to reduce both re offending and social exclusion These include working separately with women black and minority ethnic groups local community focussed projects in education and nature and conservation programmes The reader is encouraged to think about past and current policy practice and the relationship between practitioners and offenders or other socially excluded people Questions are raised as to whether and how practice could be different and contributors explore the theme of creative and change focussed practice or focus on a particular approach to a practice This book will appeal to students on criminal justice criminology and social work courses professionals operating in these fields as well as the wider audience of
