Weiss,2013-09-09 She said writing poems is like traipsing through water You run fast fast as you can hardly thinking about the birds flying above your head or the fact that you can barely see because the sun is ripping through your skin leaving you blinded no you don't think at all you just run And when you reach the land you're so out of breath and your lungs are filled with salt water instead of air It burns the inside of your chest like the sun that burned your skin but that pain feels so incredible that you forget to do anything except to breathe When you reach the land and your toes entangle in the tall grass for the first time you don't know how you got there or how long you had been treading water the only proof you have is the inability to catch your breath and the soreness in your feet There are so many words inside my chest that grow in me like flowers and bloom out my finger tips as poems carved into air I stand inhaling and exhaling this wind around me that's filled with feelings and the smell of rain with each breath I am shattered from the inside out but still I drag in these splintered words into my fragile lungs again and again Wildflower

Debasree Ghosh,2013-08-15 Like the Wild Flower that grows in the wild in the valley and in the meadow and atop a hill or floats on the river poetry as well as the stories grew from within me naturally they are not implants from without The urge to write was natural arising out of my experiences in life and how they got entwined with my emotions my trepidations like the first time when I as a child hesitantly neared the water front and dipped my foot into the cold icy water how these struck a chord within me and urged me to express my feelings Slowly like the way a flower matures the onslaught of varied experience moulded my thoughts and inspired my poetry It continued to articulate my joy of unfurling the curtains of perception and sharing the joy of living and sometimes the pain that came with it Life has so much to offer and often so much to take away from us all Our convictions our doubts our joy and our sorrow all of them blend together in our quest for that ever eluding meaning such feelings hold for us and what could be more beautiful and more lyrical than to express our innermost thoughts through poetry Like they say poetry is magical We Are All
