Young Minds In Social Worlds Experience Meaning And Memory:

Young Minds in Social Worlds Katherine Nelson, 2010-03-30 Katherine Nelson re-centers developmental psychology with a revived emphasis on development and change rather than foundations and continuity. She argues that children be seen not as scientists but as members of a community of minds striving not only to make sense but also to share meanings with others. A child is always part of a social world yet the child's experience is private. So Nelson argues we must study children in the context of the relationships, interactive language and culture of their everyday lives. Nelson draws philosophically from pragmatism and phenomenology and empirically from a range of developmental research. Skeptical of work that focuses on presumed innate abilities and the close fit of child and adult forms of cognition, her dynamic framework takes into account whole systems developing over time, presenting a coherent account of social, cognitive and linguistic development in the first five years of life. Nelson argues that a child's entrance into the community of minds is a slow, gradual process with enormous consequences for child development and the adults that they become. Original, deeply scholarly and trenchant, Young Minds in Social Worlds will inspire a new generation of developmental psychologists. Handbook of Culture and Memory Brady Wagoner, 2018 In the Handbook of Culture and Memory Brady Wagoner and his team of international contributors explore how memory is deeply entwined with social relationships, stories in film and literature, group history, ritual practices, material artifacts and a host of other cultural devices. Culture is seen as the medium through which people live and make meaning of their lives. In this book analyses focus on the mutual constitution of people's memories and the social, cultural worlds to which they belong. The complex relationship between culture and memory is explored in the concept of memory and its relation to evolution, neurology and history. Life course changes in memory from its development in childhood to its decline in old age and the national and transnational organization of collective memory and identity through narratives propagated in political discourse, the classroom and the media. The Wiley Handbook on the Development of Children's Memory Patricia J. Bauer, Robyn Fivush, 2013-09-16 This all-embracing Handbook on the Development of Children's Memory represents the first place in which critical topics in memory development are covered from multiple perspectives from infancy through adolescence. Forty-four chapters are written by experienced researchers who have influenced the field. Edited by two of the world's leading experts on the development of memory, it discusses the importance of a developmental perspective on the study of memory. The first ever handbook to bring together the world's leading academics in one reference guide, each section has an introduction written by one of the Editors who have also written an overall introduction that places the work in historical and contemporary contexts in cognitive and developmental psychology. 2 Volumes. Origins and Development of Recollection Simona Ghetti, Patricia J. Bauer, 2012-01-12 The ability to remember unique personal events is at the core of what we consider to be memory. Contributors to this volume use state-of-the-art theories and methods to address questions of how the vivid experience of reinstatement of our past emerges and how recollection contributes to our life histories.

Social Thinking and History Constance De Saint Laurent, 2020-09-14 Social Thinking and History demonstrates that our representations of history are constructed through complex psychosocial processes in interaction with multiple others and that they evolve throughout our lifetime playing an important role in our relation to our social environment Building on the literature on social thinking collective memory and sociocultural psychology this book proposes a new perspective on how we understand and use our collective past It focuses on how we actively think about history to construct representations of the world within which we live and how we learn to challenge or appropriate the stories we have heard about the past Through the analysis of three studies of how history is understood and represented in different contexts in political discourses in France by intellectuals and artists in Belgium and when discussing a current event in Poland its aim is to offer a rich picture of our representations of the past and the role they play in everyday life This book will be of great interest to academics researchers and postgraduate students in the fields of psychology memory studies sociology political science and history It will also make an interesting read for psychologists and human and social scientists working on collective memory

The Emergence of a Temporally Extended Self and Factors that Contribute to Its Development Mary Lazaridis, 2013 The main aims of the current research were to determine when children develop a temporally extended self TES and what factors contribute to its development However in order to address these aims it was important to first assess whether the test of Delayed Self Recognition DSR is a valid measure for the development of the TES and second to propose and evaluate a theoretical model that describes what factors influence the development of the TES The validity of the DSR test was verified by comparing the performance of 57 children on the DSR test to their performance on a meta representational task modified false belief task and to a task that was essentially the same as the DSR test but was specifically designed to rely on the capacity to entertain secondary representations i e surprise body task Longitudinal testing of the children showed that at the mental age MA of 2 5 years they failed the DSR test despite training them to understand the intended functions of the medium used in the DSR test whereas with training children at the MA of 3 0 and 3 5 years exhibited DSR Children at the MA of 4 years exhibited DSR without any training Finally results suggest that children's meta representational ability was the only factor that contributed to the prediction of successful performance on the DSR test and thus to the emergence of the TES That is children of low elaborative caregivers required significantly more training to pass the DSR test than children of high elaborative caregivers indicating that children who received more elaborative conversational input from their caregivers had a more advanced understanding of the TES
