difficulties imposed by the war government restrictions economic hardship and external political forces These competing political forces which included the United States Western aid agencies and Vietnamese communist agents created a highly competitive arena wherein the South Vietnamese state did not have a monopoly on persuasive or coercive power To maintain its influence the state sometimes needed to accommodate groups and limit its use of violence Civil society participants in South Vietnam leveraged their social connections made alliances appealed to the domestic and international public and used street protests to voice their concerns secure their interests and carry out their activities

Policing Protest Paul A. Passavant, 2021-06-28 In Policing Protest Paul A Passavant explores how the policing of protest in the United States has become increasingly hostile since the late 1990s moving away from strategies that protect protesters toward militaristic practices designed to suppress protests He identifies reactions to three interrelated crises that converged to institutionalize this new mode of policing the political mobilization of marginalized social groups in the Civil Rights era that led to a perceived crisis of democracy the urban fiscal crisis of the 1970s and a crime crisis that was associated with protests and civil disobedience of the 1960s As Passavant demonstrates these reactions are all haunted by the figure of black insurrection which continues to shape policing of protest and surveillance notably in response to the Black Lives Matter movement Ultimately Passavant argues this trend of violent policing strategies against protesters is evidence of the emergence of a post democratic state in the United States
