Something in the Water Michael W. Waters, 2021-01-12. Pastor, award-winning author, and rising civil rights leader Michael W. Waters. Stakes Is High For Beautiful Black Boys Who Believe in a Better World. ruminates on the sacred places and spaces he visited as part of a cross-country trek in 2019-2020 through America's racial history. From reflections on the river's edge where Emmett Till's body was recovered and the Lorraine Motel where Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated and to more recent sites of racial violence like the Charleston church massacre and El Paso mass shooting to the halls of government for Waters' prayer before the U.S. House of Representatives and his convicting speech before the Dallas City Council to remove Confederate statues. Waters connects our racist past with the current sociological and political climate, offering challenges and hope. From poems and prayers to sermons and eulogies from rally cries to commentaries. Something in the Water illuminates not just our present struggles but also the hope and belief in a better day to come. Ultimately Waters challenges us to consider our role collectively and individually in the troubled waters of racism and what we are willing to do to create something better.

The Reasons for All the USA's Annual Federal Holidays Alan Bruce Clark, PhD. This book is the result of Dr. Alan Bruce Clark's decades of study and it discusses the impact of the world's major events upon the Annual Federal Holidays of the United States of America which start with New Year's Day and end with Christmas Day. Dr. Clark wrote corporate histories for Historic Houston, a book that President George H.W. Bush also helped write, and Dr. Clark for several years wrote the monthly feature articles in the E.W. Forbes Report which received written praise from many world-renown leaders including Dr. Denton Cooley who performed the first heart transplant in the USA. He wrote these articles before the death of Elroy Forbes, a Vietnam War veteran exposed to Agent Orange and honored by multiple Houston mayors with an E.W. Forbes Day. In a strict sense, there are no national holidays when every person living in the United States is not working. However, there are eleven holidays that the Federal Government of the USA declared as annual celebrations. Five of these holidays occur on specific dates provided the calendar days do not occur on weekends, while the dates for the other six holidays vary from year to year. This book is the result of Professor Clark's providing handouts to his students about each Annual Federal Holiday and their encouraging Alan Bruce Clark, PhD, to compile the articles into an
