

Togi

A large antelope with a prominent 'dorsal' hump, being higher in the back than in the front. The head is short and globose, dark chocolate-brown with blackish-red patches extending from the lower cheeks down to the flanks to just above the knees and from the snout down the back legs terminating just above the hoofs. The nose follows this to just beneath the vertex of the long narrow horn from the forehead to the tip of the snout and on the back of the nose. The horns, which are slightly curved in front, are larger in the male. They are heavily ringed and reach from 18 months, slightly upwards and upwards towards the tips. The hair is of medium length terminating with tufts of long black hair.

All antelope species graze and some of light coloured birds and white, where they feed almost entirely on grasses and herbage. They are found in small groups of around 12 animals, usually consisting of a dominant bull along with a harem of females and young. They live, however, in groups in forested lowlands during the dry season when grazing is scarce. They will usually migrate with herds of wildebeest, following other plains ungulates. Although they will drink regularly where water is available, they can also go without water for a month without harm. They are active both by day and by night. As they stand you often find standing in a herd, the head, or a single piece of elevated ground, on the back of the predator, while other members of the herd remain to graze.

Coke's Hartbeest

A large antelope characterized by its sloping appearance being higher in the back than in the front. The head is of medium, yellow-brown, lighter on the forehead with an almost white snout and nostrils. The head and face of the antelope with large pointed ears. The horns are slender, slightly curved towards the back, and are slightly ringed and are present in both sexes. The tail is of medium length terminating in a broad white tail. The female is smaller than the male but carries a pale or white tail with similar slighter horns.

One of the most common of Africa's antelopes, inhabiting open slopes, grassland and dry savannah, sometimes with light wooded areas. They can be found in large groups in savanna but a few to many thousands, the large concentrations occurring during the dry season when available grazing is limited. They are also seen in solitary and young males and females are the latter. They are active mainly in the early morning and late afternoon, sometimes during the day during the hot sunny period. They feed mainly on grasses and herbage and will take water from other water is available, however, they will drink from a single piece of elevated ground, on the back of the predator, while other members of the herd remain to graze.

The American Biology Teacher ,2005 The Rough Guide to Tanzania Rough Guides,2015-07-01 Make the most of your time on EarthTM with The Rough Guide to Tanzania The Rough Guide to Tanzania is the definitive guide to one of Africa's most beautiful destinations with clear maps and detailed coverage of all the best attractions from climbing Mount Kilimanjaro to the exotic Indian Ocean beaches of Zanzibar You ll also find an in depth and full colour guide to Tanzania's spectacular wildlife and national parks and the most accurate map of the magically labyrinthine Stone Town based on satellite imagery From Tanzania's volcanic landscapes of Ngorongoro Crater to arranging a Serengeti safari the guide includes practical information on getting there and around plus reviews of the best Tanzanian hotels restaurants bars and shopping for all budgets You ll find introductory sections on Tanzania's cultural customs health food drink and outdoor activities as well as specialist Tanzanian tour operators and an introduction to learning Kiswahili Rely on expert background information on everything from bull fighting in Pemba through to the mosaic of ethnic groups in Tanzania Explore all corners of this fascinating country with the clearest maps of any guide Natural History ,2002 The Kingdon Pocket Guide to African Mammals Jonathan Kingdon,2020-09-17 The essential mammal guide to take on safari covering every African land mammal Originally published in 2004 the Kingdon Pocket Guide to African Mammals quickly became the field guide of choice to take on African safaris Its compact format makes it ideal for use in the field while its coverage is the most comprehensive currently possible in this format Adapted from the Kingdon Field Guide to African Mammals the greatly condensed text focuses on essential information such as identification and distribution while the author's superb illustrations have been rearranged into an easy to use plate format and placed opposite the text. Complex and more obscure groups like the bats and certain rodent families are summarised by genera. Over 500 maps plot the distribution of all larger species and for smaller mammals the maps show distribution by genus. This is a completely revised second edition of this popular guide. The information and taxonomy have been updated to follow the newly published second edition of the Kingdon Field Guide to African Mammals 2015 and this new edition of the pocket guide contains several new species and illustrations. The maps have been completely replaced and there are now 200 more maps than in the original edition. Anthropology and Cryptozoology Samantha Hurn, 2016-11-03. Cryptozoology is best understood as the study of animals which in the eyes of Western science are extinct, unclassified or unrecognised. In consequence and in part because of its selective methods and lack of epistemological rigour, cryptozoology is often dismissed as a pseudo science. However, there is a growing recognition that social science can benefit from engaging with it, for as social scientists are very well aware, scientific categorisation and explanation represents just one of a myriad of systems used by humans to enable them to classify and make sense of the world around them. In many cultural contexts, myth, folk classification and lived experience challenge the truth expounded by scientists. With a reflexive anthropological approach and drawing on rich empirical and ethnographic studies from around the world, this volume engages with the theoretical and methodological issues raised by reported sightings of unrecognised animals. Bringing into sharp focus the anthropological value and challenges for methodology posed by beliefs about unclassified creatures. Anthropology and Cryptozoology: Exploring encounters with mysterious creatures will be of interest to anthropologists, sociologists and geographers working in the fields of research methods, anthrozoology, mythology and folklore and human-animal interaction. American Scientist, 2002. Rwanda Philip Briggs, 2023-12-06. Now into its eighth edition and written by Philip Briggs, the world's leading author of African guidebooks, Bradt's Rwanda has been the go-to guide for visitors to the Land of a Thousand Hills for more than 20 years. Still the only standalone guide in English to this increasingly popular destination, it remains in a class of its own for in-depth information. With fresh research into developments across the country, Bradt's Rwanda includes expanded coverage of Gishwati-Mukura National Park, which opened to tourism in 2021, and up-to-date details of rapidly modernising Kigali, considered Africa's cleanest city. Rwanda continues to change and develop at an unprecedented pace: no country has a higher proportion of female parliamentarians and there's hardly a more accessible part of Africa. It's no less intriguing for the convenience, however, and Rwanda's superlative natural attractions constantly improve with growing animal populations, as in Akagera National Park, where Africa's Big Five—rhino, lion, leopard, elephant and buffalo—can be seen. This new edition also includes extensive maps and natural history information, while details of kayak and canoe excursions on Lake Kivu and the Mukungwa River complement advice about staying on tea plantations at Sorwathe or Gisovu. It contains everything you need to know about tracking mountain gorillas in Volcanoes National Park.

workplace of primatologist Dian Fossey of Gorillas in the Mist fame and chimpanzees in Nyungwe National Park East Africa's largest surviving montane forest harbouring numerous endemic birds and primates and Gishwati Mukura which is also the only location for the rare golden monkey outside the Virunga mountains Also covered are Nyanza with its hilltop Rukari King's Palace Museum and the Ethnographic Museum of Rwanda the top cultural site in Butare Huye A chapter on nearby cities and national parks provides key necessary information to take an excursion into neighbouring DRC including how to see lowland gorillas As not only the most in depth guide available in English but also the guide with the longest history in the country itself Bradt's Rwanda is the indispensable companion for visitors including wildlife enthusiasts and Africa aficionados
