Salcedo, Paul Gorski, 2015 Voices for Diversity and Social Justice A Literary Education Anthology is an unflinching exploration through poetry prose and art of the heart of our educational system of the segregation bias and oppression that are part of the daily lives of so many students and educators. It is also a series of poetical insights into the fights for liberation and resistance at the heart of many of the same students and teachers' lives. The contributors youth educators activists others share what it is like to face discrimination challenge unjust policy or subvert monotony by cultivating a vibrant equitable revolutionary school environment. This is not a prescriptive text but instead a call to action. It is a call from many literary voices to create schools where social justice is at the core of education. Stunning in its revelations Voices for Diversity and Social Justice is an anthology by educators and students unafraid to be passionate about what is missing what is needed and what is working in order to make that vision a reality.

Higher Education and Social Justice Leonie Rowan, 2018-12-24 This book demonstrates how the pedagogical decision making of university academics can be shaped by engagement with an educational philosophy known as relationship centred education. Beginning with critical analysis of concepts such as student engagement student satisfaction and student centred learning the author goes on to investigate how literature relating to social justice challenges educators to consider these terms in particular ways. From this basis the book explores the factors featuring in inclusive respectful diverse and student centred environments. In analysing these factors the author illuminates the perspectives of university teachers who struggle with the unique challenges of working in the academy including an increasingly broad set of employment demands and narrower criteria for determining impact all while retaining focus on the transformative potential of higher education. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of transformative learning as well as social justice within higher education.
