

WINDROWER HEADERS

The electrical system on the 994 header for windrower applications consists of the flashing lights, the trailer lights, and the wiring necessary for operating the lighting the same as for combine headers. Windrower headers also have a wiring harness for the header control box located in the cab of the windrower.

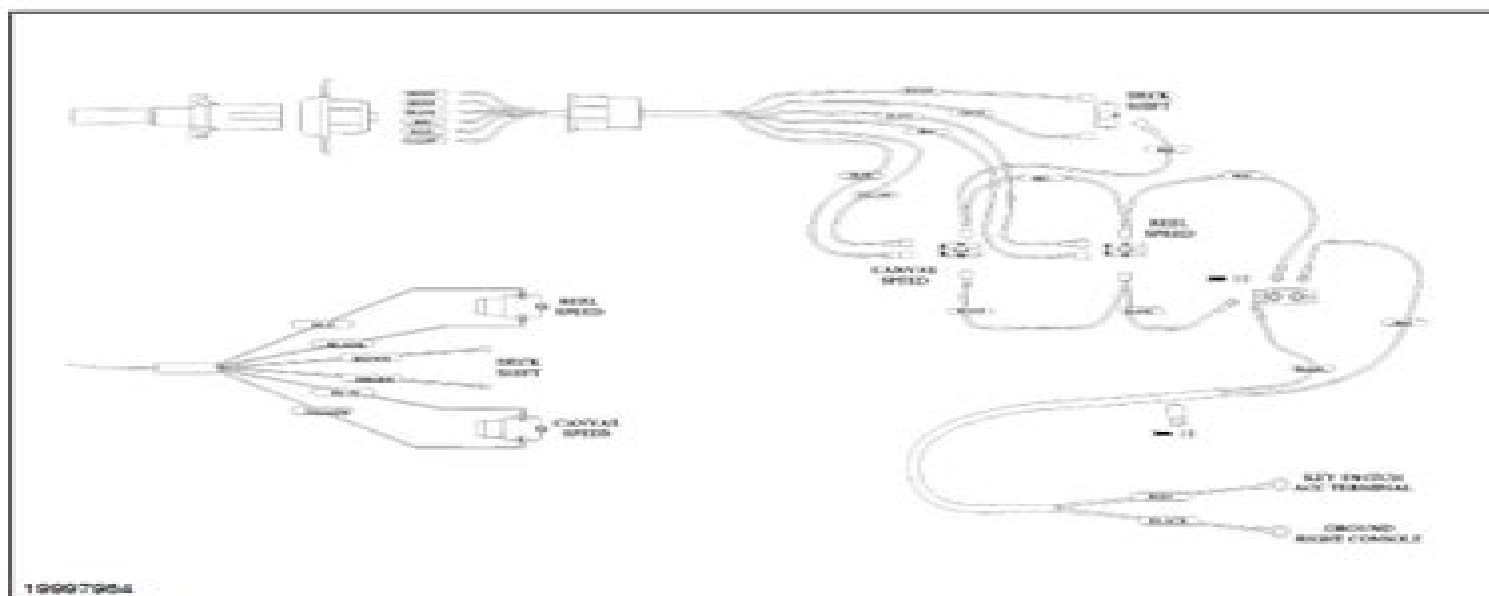

The header control box contains switches to control reel speed and canvas speed and, if the header is fitted with deck shift, a switch to shift the deck. Also contained in the control box is a 10-amp, automatic-resetting, circuit breaker to provide wiring protection in the event of a short circuit.

Power and ground are supplied to the circuit breaker in the control box through a two-wire cable. The black ground wire is connected to a cab ground. The red power wire is connected to the AOC terminal of the key switch.

A six-conductor cable carries the operator's command voltage to the solenoids on the header. The table below lists the wire color and the function for each wire in the six-conductor cable.

Wire Color	Function
Brown	Deck shift option
Green	Deck shift option
Red	Reel speed up
Black	Reel speed down
Blue	Canvas speed up
Yellow	Canvas speed down
