

It requires action to take further consultation on whether the right security rules apply, should they be changed.

It requires consultation of the relevant regulatory authorities that we cannot but do so with their independent expertise.

Further action of similar nature might however follow if the rules have been changed by the relevant act.

Consulting the relevant regulatory authorities before we put forward the bill to parliament.

It is a matter of principle that the bill to parliament should be a bill to amend existing law, not a bill to create new law.

Consultation groups will be set up to discuss the bill to parliament before it is put forward to parliament.

It is a matter of principle that we should not create new law.
