Sorting Africa's Developmental Puzzle Almaz Zewde, 2010-06-02 Sorting Africa s Development Puzzle The Participatory Social Learning Theory as an Alternative Approach is a comprehensive exploration of why Africa has not managed to achieve a sustainable and self regenerating development over the past half century of effort The work situates the problems of Africa s persistent underdevelopment in the practices employed by national political elites donors and lenders to African development that played roles in determinant policy and planning Unlike many newly developed countries and regions and contrary to the historical experiences of developed countries where ordinary people were full stakeholders and drivers of development Africa s development has been top down expert and capital driven mechanical and typically externally designed Ordinary Africans were made marginal to development This approach to Africa s development was devoid of building the people and their institutions as the legitimate means of development The entrusting of Africa s development to local and international elites to the exclusion of the people from decision making and full participation has led to grievous deficits in the formation of human and social capital and legitimate economic social and political institutions for development The book offers a studied alternative that can positively change Africa s development direction The Participatory Social Learning Approach The philosophical theoretical historical and heuristic origins of this alternative are offered in detail within this book

Constructing the International Economy Rawi Abdelal, Mark Blyth, Craig Parsons, 2015-10-27 Focusing empirically on how political and economic forces are always mediated and interpreted by agents both in individual countries and in the international sphere Constructing the International Economy sets out what such constructions and what various forms of constructivism mean both as ways of understanding the world and as sets of varying methods for achieving that understanding It rejects the assumption that material interests either linearly or simply determine economic outcomes and demands that analysts consider as a plausible hypothesis that economies might vary substantially for nonmaterial reasons that affect both institutions and agents interests

Constructing the International Economy portrays the diversity of models and approaches that exist among constructivists writing on the international political economy. The authors outline and relate several different arguments for why scholars might attend to social construction, inviting the widest possible array of scholars to engage with such approaches. They examine points of terminological or theoretical confusion that create unnecessary barriers to engagement between constructivists and nonconstructivist work and among different types of constructivism. This book provides a tool kit that both constructivists and their critics can use to debate how much and when social construction matters in this deeply important realm.

Chwieroth (London School of Economics), Francesco Duina (Bates College), Charlotte Epstein (University of Sydney), Yoshiko M. Herrera (University of Wisconsin-Madison), Paul Langley (Northumbria University), Craig Parsons (University of Oregon), Catherine Weaver (University of Texas at Austin), Wesley W. Emerging Markets and the State (Christopher Wylde, 2017-07-27) This book, through an analysis of case studies in Latin America and Southeast Asia, sets out to understand the form and function of contemporary states seeking to guide and cajole markets, hoping to stimulate economic growth and generate robust development outcomes. In the context of contemporary globalization and the hegemony of a neoliberal mode of capital accumulation, independent state-directed development has moved away from the reach of many emerging markets. Wylde's analysis reveals that, contrary to much of the literature espousing the end of the state, the role of the state in the 21st-century development process continues to be of pivotal importance.

Entrepreneurship, Training, Education and Job Creation (Magda Hewitt, 2010-08-01) The papers included in this book were taken from the proceedings of the University of Johannesburg Faculty of Management Department of Entrepreneurship 2010 Entrepreneurship Training Education and Job Creation Conference. These papers address some of the issues in terms of entrepreneurship training, education, and job creation.

Routledge Handbook of Public Policy (Eduardo Araral, 2013) This Handbook provides a comprehensive global survey of the policy process. Written by an outstanding line-up of distinguished scholars and practitioners, the Handbook covers all aspects of the policy process, including Theory (from rational choice to the new institutionalism), Frameworks (network theory, advocacy coalition, and development models), Key stages in the process (formulation, implementation, and evaluation), Agenda setting and decision making, The roles of key actors and institutions.
