Environmental Thought in the Graeco-Roman World Orietta Dora Cordovana, 2024-09-23 The debate that has arisen around the concept of the Anthropocene forms the basis of this book It investigates certain forms of environmental interrelation and ecological sensitivity in the Graeco Roman world The notions of environmental depletion exploitation and loss of plant species and the ancients knowledge of species diversity are the main cores of the research The aim is to interrogate historical sources and diverse evidence and to analyse political and socioeconomic structures according to a reading focused on possible antecedents cultural prodromes alignments of thought or divergencies with respect to major modern environmental problems and current ecological conceptualisations As a result sustainable behaviour biodiversity and its practical uses can also be identified in ancient societies In the context of environmental studies this contribution is placed from the perspective of a historian of antiquity with the aim of outlining the forma mentis and praxis of the ancients with respect to specific environmental issues Ancient civilizations always provided ad hoc solutions for specific emergencies but never developed a comprehensive ecological culture of environmental protection as in modernity

The Birth of the Anthropocene Jeremy Davies, 2016-05-24 The world faces an environmental crisis unprecedented in human history Carbon dioxide levels have reached heights not seen for three million years and the greatest mass extinction since the time of the dinosaurs appears to be underway Such far reaching changes suggest something remarkable the beginning of a new geological epoch It has been called the Anthropocene The Birth of the Anthropocene shows how this epochal transformation puts the deep history of the planet at the heart of contemporary environmental politics By opening a window onto geological time the idea of the Anthropocene changes our understanding of present day environmental destruction and injustice Linking new developments in earth science to the insights of world historians Jeremy Davies shows that as the Anthropocene epoch begins politics and geology have become inextricably entwined The Making of International Environmental Treaties Gerry Nagtzaam,2009 Gerry Nagtzaam contends that in recent decades neoliberal institutionalist scholarship on global environmental regimes has burgeoned as has constructivist scholarship on the key role played by norms in international politics In this innovative volume the author sets these interest and norm based approaches against each other in order to test their ability to illustrate why and how different environmental norms take hold in some regimes and not others The book explores why some global environmental treaties seek to preserve and protect some parts of nature from human utilization some seek to conserve certain parts of nature for human development whilst others allow the reckless exploitation of nature without accounting for the consequences It tracks the fate of these three underlying environmental norms preservation conservation and exploitation using case studies on whaling mining in Antarctica and tropical timber The book illustrates how international political battles to shape environmental regimes inevitably result in clashes between these competing environmental norms This unique study will prove a fascinating read for both academics and practitioners in the fields of international environmental politics and international environmental law Gardens and Human Agency in the Anthropocene Maria Paula Diogo,Ana Duarte Rodrigues,Ana Simões,Davide Scarso,2019-04-26 This volume discusses gardens as designed landscapes of mediation between nature and culture embodying different levels of human control over wilderness defining specific rules for this confrontation and staging different forms of human dominance The contributing authors focus on ways of rethinking the garden and its role in contemporary society using it as a crossover platform between nature science and technology Drawing upon their diverse fields of research including History of Science and Technology Environmental Studies Gardens and Landscape Studies Urban Studies and Visual and Artistic Studies the authors unveil various entanglements woven in the past between nature and culture and probe the potential of alternative epistemologies to escape the predicament of fatalistic dystopias that often revolve around the Anthropocene debate This book will be of great interest to those studying environmental and landscape history the history of science and technology historical geography and the environmental humanities Asia and the Transformation of the World-System Ganesh K. Trichur,2015-12-03 In this collaboratively authored book world system scholars critically synthesize Asia's re-emerging centrality despite the myriad financial crises that have punctuated the end of the U S dominated Cold War world order From different vantage points the authors review the turbulent landscape of the region that points toward a new Asian world order as well as contradictory symptoms and signals The text highlights the salience of Northeast Asia the resurgence of Russia and Eurasianism and the class gender and ecological implications of a conflict ridden regional ascent for the future of the North South divide and for the struggle between the spirit of Davos and the spirit of Porto Alegre Democratic Experimentalism Brian E. Butler,2013 This volume focuses on democratic experimentalism gathering a collection of original and previously unpublished essays focusing upon its major outlines as well as specific aspects both promising and troublesome of this theoretical approach Together these essays offer conceptions of democracy and democratic governance that emphasize and highlight experimentalist aspects of pragmatic thought particularly Deweyan pragmatism and its relationship to instantiation in concrete social and political institutions Issues of democratic governance political organization and the relationship of law to democracy are analyzed Scarcity and Frontiers Edward B. Barbier,2010-12-23 Throughout much of history a critical driving force behind global economic development has been the response of society to the scarcity of key natural resources Increasing scarcity raises the cost of exploiting existing natural resources and creates incentives in all economies to innovate and conserve more of these resources However economies have also responded to increasing scarcity by obtaining and developing more of these resources Since the agricultural transition over 12 000 years ago this exploitation of new frontiers has often proved to be a pivotal human response to natural resource scarcity This book provides a fascinating account of the contribution that natural resource exploitation has made to economic development in key eras of world history This not only fills an important gap in the literature on economic history but also shows how we can draw lessons from these past epochs for attaining sustainable economic development in the world today Historians Debate the Rise of the West Jonathan Daly,2014-07-11 How and why did Europe rise to world pre eminence Providing an overview of this central historical conundrum of modern times Historians Debate the Rise of the West enables students to grasp major scholars evaluations of the biggest picture of all how Western civilization fits into modern world history Most historians who write in this area subscribe to a combination of interpretations set forward by scholars of the field like David Landes Jared Diamond or Kenneth Pomeranz But it is often difficult to understand the position they are coming from and for readers to understand clearly how Europe made the transition from merely one of many developing civilizations to the world s first industrial power In this volume Jonathan Daly introduces us to the main interpretations of Europe s rise that have been proposed over the past half century and presents the views of these historians and schools of scholarship advocating for each point of view and letting each author speak for him or herself through the inclusion of brief textual selections Also included are interesting biographical details for each scholar as well as a list of further reading for each chapter and a collection of maps An ideal introduction for students of world history Natural Resources and Economic Development Edward B. Barbier,2005-11-24 Natural Resources and Economic Development first published in 2005 explores a key paradox why is natural resource exploitation not yielding greater benefits to the poor economies of Africa Asia and Latin America Part I examines this paradox both through a historical review of resource use and development and through examining current theories which explain the under performance of today s resource abundant economies and proposes a frontier expansion hypothesis as an alternative explanation Part II develops models to analyse the key economic factors underlying land expansion and water use in developing countries Part III explores further the dualism within dualism structure of resource dependency rural poverty and resource degradation within developing countries and through illustrative country case studies proposes policy and institutional reforms necessary for successful resource based development
