World Ecological Degradation Accumulation Urbanization And Deforestation 3000bc Ad2000:

World Ecological Degradation Sing C. Chew, 2001 Deforestation soil runoff salination pollution While recurrent themes of the contemporary world they are not new to us In this broad sweeping review of the environmental impacts of human settlement and development worldwide over the past 5 000 years Sing C Chew shows that these processes are as old as civilization itself With examples ranging from Ancient Mesopotamia to Malaya Mycenaean Greece to Ming China Chew shows that the processes of population growth intensive resource accumulation and urbanization in ancient and modern societies almost universally bring on ecological disaster which often contributes to the decline and fall of that society He then turns his eye to the development of the modern European world system and its impact on the environment Challenging us to change these long term trends Chew also traces the existence of environmental conservation ideas and movements over the span of 5 000 years Can we do it Look at Chew s evidence of the past five millennia and decide Ideal for courses in environmental history anthropology and sociology and world systems theory World Ecological Degradation Sing C. Chew, 2001-06-06 Deforestation soil runoff salination pollution While recurrent themes of the contemporary world they are not new to us In this broad sweeping review of the environmental impacts of human settlement and development worldwide over the past 5 000 years Sing C Chew shows that these processes are as old as civilization itself With examples ranging from Ancient Mesopotamia to Malaya Mycenaean Greece to Ming China Chew shows that the processes of population growth intensive resource accumulation and urbanization in ancient and modern societies almost universally bring on ecological disaster which often contributes to the decline and fall of that society He then turns his eye to the development of the modern European world system and its impact on the environment Challenging us to change these long term trends Chew also traces the existence of environmental conservation ideas and movements over the span of 5 000 years Can we do it Look at Chew s evidence of the past five millennia and decide Ideal for courses in environmental history anthropology and sociology and world systems theory The Making of International Environmental Treaties Gerry Nagtzaam, 2009 Gerry Nagtzaam contends that in recent decades neoliberal institutionalist scholarship on global environmental regimes has burgeoned as has constructivist scholarship on the key role played by norms in international politics In this innovative volume the author sets these interest and norm based approaches against each other in order to test their ability to illustrate why and how different environmental norms take hold in some regimes and not others The book explores why some global environmental treaties seek to preserve and protect some parts of nature from human utilization some seek to conserve certain parts of nature for human development whilst others allow the reckless exploitation of nature without accounting for the consequences It tracks the fate of these three underlying environmental norms preservation conservation and exploitation using case studies on whaling mining in Antarctica and tropical timber The book illustrates how international political battles to shape environmental regimes inevitably result in clashes between these competing environmental norms This unique study will prove a fascinating read for both academics and practitioners in the fields of international environmental politics and international environmental law The Right of Nonuse Jan G. Laitos, 2013-05-21 The Right of Nonuse provides a fresh and remarkably different perspective on the real causes of the ills plaguing the world's resources and environment. It re-examines the very nature of nature and from this new perspective argues that what is needed is for humans to grant to natural resources a legal right to be left alone, a right of nonuse. In the process, it explores the following questions: Why do natural resources continue to be depleted and removed at an alarming rate? Why are species becoming extinct at a pace that may be unprecedented? Why does the environment continue to be polluted? Why do the weather and climate seem to be changing? Perhaps most important, why have laws, legal institutions, and governments been unable to address and correct these problems? Jan Laitos reviews the history of our relationship with the natural environment and develops new ways of thinking about nature and its protection. Instead of proceeding with human-based goals, Laitos argues that we should protect environmental resources for their own intrinsic value. Instead of giving humans more and more rights to clean up the environment and to halt resources depletion, a right of nonuse held by the resource itself should be created. Natural resources have always possessed this parallel nonuse function, and society should recognize and legitimize it Comparing Globalizations Thomas D. Hall, 2017-11-17 This work explores essential debates on globalization and world systems analysis. It begins with a review of theoretical insights from world systems analysis and explains the evolution of its terminology. The book subsequently seeks to answer several important questions: When did globalization begin, and what insights into contemporary globalization may be gained from older forms? How does globalization differ in different places, and how can different instances of globalization be compared? Who is affected by globalization, how are they affected, and how do these effects vary if at all over time and space? As world systems analysis and studies of globalization require interdisciplinary expertise, the contributing authors draw on many fields, including anthropology, economics, geography, philosophy, political science, sociology, and world history. The book's overall goal is to facilitate the dialogue between approaches that at times seem to talk at cross purposes and to extend an invitation to scholars from many different areas to explore globalization.

Maps of Time David Christian, 2011-09 Introducing a novel perspective on the study of history, David Christian views the interaction of the natural world with the more recent arrivals in flora and fauna, including human beings Understanding Collapse Guy D. Middleton, 2017-06-26 Understanding Collapse explores the collapse of ancient civilisations such as the Roman Empire, the Maya, and Easter Island. In this lively survey, Guy D. Middleton critically examines our ideas about collapse: how we explain it and how we have constructed potentially misleading myths around collapses, showing how and why collapse of societies was a much more complex phenomenon than is often admitted. Rather than positing a single explanatory model of collapse—economic, social, or environmental—Middleton gives full consideration to the overlooked resilience in communities of ancient peoples and the choices that they made. He offers a fresh interpretation of collapse that will be accessible to both students and scholars The book is an engaging introductory level survey of collapse in the archaeology history literature which will be ideal for use in courses on the collapse of civilizations sustainability and climate change It includes up to date case studies of famous and less well known examples of collapses and is illustrated with 25 black and white illustrations 3 line drawings 16 tables and 18 maps

China Robert B. Marks, 2017-02-13 This deeply informed and clearly written text provides a comprehensive and comprehensible history of China from prehistory to the present Now updated to include recent political events and scientific research the book focuses on the interaction of humans and their environment Tracing changes in the physical and cultural world that is home to a fifth of humankind Robert B Marks illuminates the paradoxes inherent in China s environmental narrative demonstrating how historically sustainable practices can in fact be profoundly ecologically unsound The author also reevaluates China s traditional heroic storyline highlighting the marginalization of nature and contacts with other peoples that followed the spread of Chinese civilization while examining the development of a distinctly Chinese way of relating to and altering the environment Unmatched in his ability to synthesize a complex subject clearly and cogently Marks has written an accessible yet nuanced history for any student interested in China past or present or indeed in the world's environmental future Knowledge And Civilization

Barry Allen, 2018-02-15 Offers a new original way of framing questions about knowledge Knowledge and Civilization advances detailed criticism of philosophy's usual approach to knowledge and describes a redirection away from textbook problems of epistemology toward an ecological philosophy of technology and civilization Rejecting theories that confine knowledge to language or discourse Allen situates knowledge in the greater field of artifacts technical performance and human evolution His wide ranging considerations draw on ideas from evolutionary biology archaeology anthropology and the history of cities art and technology The End Joel Wainwright, 2025-11-25 How Marx provides new insights into our environmental crisis when read alongside Darwin In this pathbreaking study Joel Wainwright shows how deeply Darwin influenced Capital Marx's thinking about history and nature changed generating a distinctive ecological critique of capitalism as a social formation Marx even called Capital a study of natural history Introduction to the Environmental Humanities J. Security and Environmental Change Simon Dalby, 2013-05-08 In the early years of the new millennium hurricanes lashed the Caribbean and flooded New Orleans as heat waves and floods seemed to alternate in Europe Snows were disappearing on Mount Kilimanjaro while the ice caps on both poles retreated The resulting disruption caused to many societies and the potential for destabilizing international migration has meant that the environment has become a political priority The scale of environmental change caused by globalization is now so large that security has to be understood as an ecological process A new geopolitics is long overdue In this book Simon Dalby provides an accessible and engaging account of the challenges we face in responding to security and environmental change He traces the historical roots of current thinking about security and climate change to show the roots of the contemporary concern and goes on to outline modern thinking about securitization which uses the politics of invoking threats as a central part of the analysis He argues that to understand climate change and the dislocations of global ecology it is necessary to look back at how ecological change is tied to the expansion of the world economic system over the last few centuries As the global urban system changes on a local and global scale the world's population becomes vulnerable in new ways In a clear and careful analysis Dalby shows that theories of human security now require a much more nuanced geopolitical imagination if they are to grapple with these new vulnerabilities and influence how we build more resilient societies to cope with the coming disruptions This book will appeal to level students and scholars of geography environmental studies security studies and international politics as well as to anyone concerned with contemporary globalization and its transformation of the biosphere

The Anthropology of Climate Change Hans Baer, Merrill Singer, 2014-04-24 In addressing the urgent questions raised by climate change this book provides a comprehensive overview of the anthropology of climate change guided by a critical political ecological framework It argues that anthropologists must significantly expand their focus on climate change and their contributions to responding to climate change as a grave risk to humanity The book presents a human socioecological framework for conceptualizing climate change It examines the emergence and slow maturation of the anthropology of climate change reviews the historic foundations for this work in the archaeology of climate change and presents three alternative contemporary theoretical perspectives in the anthropology of climate change The book synthesizes anthropological work and perspectives on climate change in the form of case studies in various regions of the world revealing the nature of global climate change as constituting multiple and somewhat diverse changes in local settings It explores the applied anthropology of climate change in terms of the ways anthropologists are contributing to climate policy working with communities on climate change issues as well as within the climate movement both internationally and nationally Finally it provides an overview of what other the social sciences are saying about climate change and explores ways that the anthropology of climate change can interface with sociology political science and human geography in order to create an integrated social science of climate change This book gives researchers and students in Environmental Anthropology Climate Change Human Geography and Sociology a novel framework for understanding climate change that emphasizes human socioecological interactions International Social Work David Cox,Manohar Pawar,2012-12-04 International Social Work Issues Strategies and Programs Second Edition draws together the practice wisdom emerging within the broad scope of international social work practice and its role in contributing to the international community s efforts in combating the major global social problems of poverty conflict and postconflict reconstruction the development of countries and disadvantaged populations migration and displacement and the needs of specific populations such as child soldiers and AIDS orphans Utilizing an integrated perspectives approach incorporating global human rights ecological and social development perspectives the International Social Work 2e is designed to prepare social workers human services professionals development practitioners who desire to play significant roles in responding to modern global challenges that are critical to the well being of people communities nations and ultimately of us all The Oxford Handbook of Commodity History Jonathan Curry-Machado,Jean Stubbs,William Gervase Clarence-Smith,Jelmer Vos,2024 The Oxford Handbook of Commodity History features contributions from scholars involved in the field s development across a range of countries and linguistic regions Each of the handbook s thirty one chapters focuses on an important theme within commodity history essential approaches global histories modes of production people and land environmental impact consumption and new methodologies

Abundant Earth Eileen Crist,2019-02-08 In Abundant Earth Eileen Crist not only documents the rising tide of biodiversity loss but also lays out the drivers of this wholesale destruction and how we can push past them Looking beyond the familiar litany of causes a large and growing human population rising livestock numbers expanding economies and international trade and spreading infrastructures and incursions upon wildlands she asks the key question if we know human expansionism is to blame for this ecological crisis why are we not taking the needed steps to halt our expansionism Crist argues that to do so would require a two pronged approach Scaling down calls upon us to lower the global human population while working within a human rights framework to deindustrialize food production and to localize economies and contract global trade Pulling back calls upon us to free restore reconnect and rewild vast terrestrial and marine ecosystems However the pervasive worldview of human supremacy the conviction that humans are superior to all other life forms and entitled to use these life forms and their habitats normalizes and promotes humanity s ongoing expansion undermining our ability to enact these linked strategies and preempt the mounting suffering and dislocation of both humans and nonhumans Abundant Earth urges us to confront the reality that humanity will not advance by entrenching its domination over the biosphere On the contrary we will stagnate in the identity of nature colonizer and decline into conflict as we vie for natural resources Instead we must chart another course choosing to live in fellowship within the vibrant ecologies of our wild and domestic
