social and economic issues using the novel conceptual framework of the urban divide Planning Asian Cities Stephen Hamnett, Dean Forbes, 2012-03-29 Stephen Hamnett and Dean Forbes have brought together some of the region's most distinguished urbanists to explore the planning history and recent development of Pacific Asia's major cities. They show how globalization and the competition to achieve global city status has had a profound effect on all these cities. But how resilient are these cities to the risks that they face? How can they manage continuing pressures for development and growth while reducing their vulnerability to a range of potential crises? And given the tradition of top-down centralized state directed planning which drove the economic growth of many of these cities in the last century, what prospects are there of them becoming more inclusive and sensitive to the diverse needs of their populations and to the importance of culture heritage and local places in creating liveable cities.

Developing Living Cities Kallidaikurichi Seetharam, Belinda K. P. Yuen, 2010 This is an important and timely book. With half of humanity living in cities, our future will depend on how well we manage our cities. This book poses six inter-generational challenges to cities. If a city deals successfully with them, it will become a living, thriving, prosperous and delightful place to live, work and visit. Prof Tommy Koh, Chairman, Governing Council, Asia Pacific Water Forum.

Low Carbon-oriented Design Ivan Chin Shing Fu, Sunnie Sing Yeung Lau, Jin Zhang, Yijia Miao, Stephen Siu Yu Lau, 2025-09-26 This book presents an innovative approach to sustainable urban design through the lens of low carbon oriented design. It offers a comprehensive framework integrating four key paradigms: Design with Nature, Design with Human, Design with Clean Energy, and Design with Climate. By synthesizing ecological principles, human-centric approaches, renewable energy solutions, and climate responsive strategies, the book provides a practical manual for creating energy efficient, environmentally harmonious buildings and cities. The book stands out for its holistic perspective, bridging theoretical concepts with real-world applications through diverse case studies, particularly from rapidly developing Asian contexts. It addresses pressing challenges of climate change, resource depletion, and urban livability by offering cutting-edge strategies for reducing carbon footprints in the built environment.

Culture, Innovation and the Green Economy Biljana Mickov, 2025-06-25 The book offers a theoretical and practical analysis of the contemporary approach to art, culture, and innovation, with special emphasis on the relationship between culture, innovation, and the economy in the context of green transition as an indispensable sustainability factor. It presents new models that can be implemented especially within strategic cultural planning, serving to ensure future development and attain certain levels of stability. The book argues that the cultural ecosystem should not be treated as merely a segment of the economy but rather as a system that contains the economy. One of the main issues covered in the book is climate change. More than fifty years have passed since the first major conference of the United Nations (UN) on the Environment held in Stockholm in 1972, which gave birth to the Stockholm Declaration and also cemented the global environmental movement. Thanks to Agenda 2030, the 17 Sustainable Development Goals, and the Paris Agreement, there is an increased awareness of the dangers posed by climate change and of the need to switch to sustainable energy sources and a circular economy in the hope of preventing environmental problems that threaten life on Earth Each chapter provides an accessible bank of knowledge on which existing theory and practice can be developed and new projects undertaken The book adopts a highly interdisciplinary approach for open science bridging theoretical insights with practical applications and offers a comprehensive perspective that is both informative and actionable so it can be used by academics researchers policy makers and cultural professionals for planning and development within the cultural sector Biljana Mickov is a cultural researcher and professor She holds a PhD from University of Reims Champagne Ardenne
