Manhattan to West Cork Alice Carey, 2016-04-01 As a young girl Alice Carey came to realise that home can mean different things The only child of Irish immigrants to New York in search of a better life her isolated and sometimes violent childhood was transformed when her mother started working as maid to legendary Broadway producer Jean Dalrymple In Miss D's elegant Park Avenue town house Alice was exposed to a life she had only seen in films Her mother worked to save up enough money for them both to go home to Ireland travelling down below on ocean liners Ireland in the 1960s was radically different from New York in every way especially in its morality and attitudes to clerical abuse Yet despite the darkness many years later Alice and her husband fell in love with an abandoned Georgian farmhouse in west Cork As they restored its stables Alice began unearthing buried childhood memories played out in wildly divergent homes in New York City Fire Island and Killarney Manhattan to West Cork is the poignant tale of a young girl raised in a difficult environment juxtaposed with the story of a grown woman trying to make sense of her childhood A great read Alice started her first diary aged 10 this love of recording may explain her perceptive eye and ear and why the simplicity of her narration draws us in Irish Examiner War and Remembrance Renée Dickason, Delphine Letort, Michel Prum, Stéphanie A.H.

Communities of Memory William James Booth, 2018-07-05 Memory has fueled merciless violent strife and it has been at the core of reconciliation and reconstruction It has been used to justify great crimes and yet it is central to the pursuit of justice In these and more everyday ways we live surrounded by memory individual and social in our habits our names the places where we live street names libraries archives and our citizenship institutions and laws Still we wonder what to make of memory and its gifts though sometimes we are hardly even certain that they are gifts Of the many chambers in this vast palace I mean to ask particularly after the place of memory in politics in the identity of political communities and in their practices of doing justice from the Preface W James Booth seeks to understand the place of memory in the identity ethics and practices of justice of political communities Identity is he believes a particular kind of continuity across time one central to the possibility of agency and responsibility and memory plays a central role in grounding that continuity Memory identity takes two forms a habitlike form the deep presence of the past that is part of a life led in common and a more fragile vulnerable form in which memory struggles to preserve identity through time notably in bearing witness a form of memory work deeply bound up with the identity of political communities Booth argues that memory holds a defining place in determining how justice is administered Memory is tied to the very possibility of an ethical community one responsible for its own past able to make commitments for the future and driven to seek justice Underneath and motivating the politics of memory understood as contests over the writing of history over memorials museums and canons he writes there lies an intertwining of memory identity and justice Communities of Memory both argues for and maps out that intertwining
