opportunisticly or not does not only depend on his inclination towards carrying out unfair business practices but also on the incentives that are given to him Furthermore recent approaches drawing on Agency Theory have replaced the traditional model of a self serving man by an agent showing cooperative behaviours as described in Stewardship Theory In his original version of TCE Williamson relied on vertical integration as an effective governance mechanism to attenuate opportunism and to safeguard specific investments Transactions with high asset specificity should be governed by hierarchy mechanisms that are not accessible to markets such as intensive monitoring or incentive structures As a result transaction costs would be minimized In fact hierarchical controls should not be treated as a universal remedy to curtail unfair business practices
