Women in Governing Institutions in South Asia Nizam Ahmed, 2017-08-24. This edited volume examines policies aimed at increasing the representation of women in governing institutions in six South Asian countries. Divided into three parts, it addresses the implications of uniformity and diversity for the substantive representation of women in parliament, civil service and local government. The contributing authors explore the scope and limits of positive discriminatory policies within distinct country contexts and the implications of the lack of such policies in other countries. Their findings shed new light on the extent to which the higher presence of women in different governing institutions matters, particularly in respect of promoting women's issues and also on the way men and women in different governing institutions look upon each other's roles and adopt strategies for mutual adjustment. This innovative collection will appeal to students and scholars of gender studies, public policy and administration, international relations, law and political science.

Civil Society Organizations and the Global Response to HIV/AIDS Julia Smith, 2016-11-03. Why has the response to HIV/AIDS been unique? How did civil society organizations gain access to global decision making forums to demand exceptional attention and resources for HIV/AIDS? This book seeks to answer these questions among others through a critical international relations approach that enquires into the role of civil society in global health governance. It documents how civil society forged the initial response to HIV/AIDS within a rights based paradigm and built international networks. It analyses why civil society was able to gain the right to participate in global health institutions and assesses what influence civil society representatives have within these institutions, particularly focusing on outcomes related to institutional legitimacy and downward accountability. It then discusses changes in the broader political economy of global health and how HIV/AIDS organizations have or have not adapted to these shifts. Finally, the book tells the story of the many struggles civil society organizations have engaged in to advance a rights based response to HIV/AIDS, the transformations achieved and the resistance experienced.
