Theories Of Vision From Al Kindi To Kepler:

Theories of Vision from Al-kindī to Kepler David C. Lindberg, 1976 Kepler's successful solution to the problem of vision early in the seventeenth century was a theoretical triumph as significant as many of the more celebrated developments of the scientific revolution. Yet the full import of Kepler's arguments can be grasped only when they are viewed against the background of ancient medieval and Renaissance visual theory. David C. Lindberg provides this background and in doing so he fills the gap in historical scholarship and constructs a model for tracing the development of scientific ideas. David C. Lindberg is professor and chairman of the department of the history of science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Early Modern Eyes Walter Simon Melion, Lee Palmer Wandel, 2010 Drawing on optic theory, ethnography, and the visual cultures of Christianity, this volume explores various discourses of vision in early modern Europe and the colonial Americas.

The Cambridge History of Science: Volume 2, Medieval Science David C. Lindberg, Michael H. Shank, 2013-10-07 This volume in the highly respected Cambridge History of Science series is devoted to the history of science in the Middle Ages from the North Atlantic to the Indus Valley. Medieval science was once universally dismissed as non-existent, and sometimes it still is. This volume reveals the diversity of goals, contexts, and accomplishments in the study of nature during the Middle Ages. Organized by topic and culture, its essays by distinguished scholars offer the most comprehensive and up-to-date history of medieval science currently available. Intended to provide a balanced and inclusive treatment of the medieval world, contributors consider scientific learning and advancement in the cultures associated with the Arabic, Greek, Latin, and Hebrew languages. Scientists, historians, and other curious readers will all gain a new appreciation for the study of nature during an era that is often misunderstood.

Vision and Blindness in Film Dago Schelin, 2019-02-13 In order to understand vision, we have to look into concepts of blindness both diegetically in typical film characters and in the representation of sight or lack thereof. A critical historical investigation into theories of vision shows that the way we understand visuality today, scientifically and culturally, is very different from pre-modern notions and practices. In this book, Dago Schelin questions categories such as active and passive vision, tactile visuality, as well as blind vision, and discusses them alongside a variety of movies that deal with vision and blindness. Is there a connection between the filmmaker's gaze and an older pre Keplerian ontology of vision What is the role of sound in vision Are our eyes mere camcorders or might they be projectors These and other questions comprise the fascinating journey on which this study embarks

Stumbling Blocks Before the Blind Edward Wheatley, 2010-04-27 Bold deeply learned and important offering a provocative thesis that is worked out through legal and archival materials and in subtle and original readings of literary texts Absolutely new in content and significantly innovative in methodology and argument Stumbling Blocks Before the Blind offers a cultural geography of medieval blindness that invites us to be more discriminating about how we think of geographies of disability today Christopher Baswell Columbia University A challenging interesting and timely book that is also very well written Wheatley has researched and brought together a leitmotiv that I never would have guessed was so pervasive so intriguing so worthy of a book Jody Enders University of California Santa Barbara Stumbling Blocks Before the Blind presents the first comprehensive exploration of a disability in the Middle Ages drawing on the literature history art history and religious discourse of England and France It relates current theories of disability to the cultural and institutional constructions of blindness in the eleventh through fifteenth centuries examining the surprising differences in the treatment of blind people and the responses to blindness in these two countries The book shows that pernicious attitudes about blindness were partially offset by innovations and ameliorations social literary and to an extent medical that began to foster a fuller understanding and acceptance of blindness A number of practices and institutions in France both positive and negative blinding as punishment the foundation of hospices for the blind and some medical treatment resulted in not only attitudes that commodified human sight but also inhumane satire against the blind in French literature both secular and religious Anglo Saxon and later medieval England differed markedly in all three of these areas and the less prominent position of blind people in society resulted in noticeably fewer cruel representations in literature This book will interest students of literature history art history and religion because it will provide clear contexts for considering any medieval artifact relating to blindness a literary text a historical document a theological treatise or a work of art For some readers the book will serve as an introduction to the field of disability studies an area of increasing interest both within and outside of the academy Edward Wheatley is Surtz Professor of Medieval Literature at Loyola University Chicago

Studies on Plotinus and al-Kindi Peter Adamson, 2023-05-31 This book collects 15 papers on the greatest philosopher of late antiquity and founder of Neoplatonism Plotinus d 270 and the founding figure of philosophy in the Islamic world al Kind d ca 873 A number of the contributions focus on the text that joins the two the so called Theology of Aristotle in fact an Arabic version of Plotinus Enneads produced in al Kind's translation circle Across several papers Adamson argues that this translation is best understood as a reinterpretation of Plotinus designed to appeal to contemporary readers in the culture of the Abbasid era Two contributions also analyze the notes on the Theology written by the great Avicenna Other papers look at aspects of al Kind's own thought exploring his ideas concerning metaphysics free will astrology and optics The traditions of Plotinus and al
