Soil and Water Conservation in Semi-arid Areas Norman Hudson, 1987-01-01 The problems of agriculture in the semi arid regions Assessing the possibilities for improving agriculture Soil conservation Water conservation Water harvesting and use Applications of water conservation

Innovations as Key to the Green Revolution in Africa Andre Bationo, Boaz Waswa, Jeremiah M. Okeyo, Fredah Maina, Job Maguta Kihara, 2011-08-30 Africa can achieve self sufficiency in food production through adoption of innovations in the agriculture sector Numerous soil fertility and crop production technologies have been generated through research however wide adoption has been low African farmers need better technologies more sustainable practices and fertilizers to improve and sustain their crop productivity and to prevent further degradation of agricultural lands The agricultural sector also needs to be supported by functional institutions and policies that will be able to respond to emerging challenges of globalization and climate change

Properties and Management of Soils in the Tropics Pedro A. Sanchez, 2019-01-10 The long awaited second edition of this classic textbook expands on the first edition to include advances made in the last four decades bringing the topic completely up to date The book addresses critical issues such as whether humanity can feed itself and whether it can do so in environmentally sound and sustainable ways Written from agronomic environmental and ecological standpoints the textbook employs a multidisciplinary approach including policymaking and plant genetic improvements as well as ecosystem services climate change biodiversity sustainability and resilience New chapters in this second edition focus on organic carbon in soil soil biology soils in relation to livestock production and forestry and agroforestry The new edition will again be the go to textbook for courses on tropical soils and a reference textbook for soil and agricultural scientists and development professionals working in the tropics

Integrated Watershed Management in Rainfed Agriculture Suhas P. Wani, Johan Rockstrom, Kanwar Lal Sahrawat, 2011-09-16 This book provides a comprehensive presentation of the realization of improved rainfed agriculture yield in semi arid and dry land areas The incentive of watershed programs is to increase the return on investment with over 20% for 65% of the projects that are currently underperforming Besides techniques to improve the livelihood of the many small scale farmers in developing countries it includes examples and case studies for further support The methods discussed have recently shown to be successful and economically remunerative in India and in various African countries Intended for professionals investors policy makers researchers and post graduate students working on dry land and sustainable agriculture and water and natural resources management Suited for courses in dry land agriculture soil and water management and watershed development Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1991-04 Abstracts on Tropical Agriculture ,1994 Advances in Soil Science ,2013-03-07 From the beginning of agriculture until about 1950 increased food production came almost entirely from expanding the cropland base Since 1950 however the yield per unit of land area for major crops has increased dramatically Much of the increase in yields was because of increased inputs of energy Between 1950 and 1985 the farm tractor fleet quadrupled world irrigated area tripled and use of fertilizer increased ninefold Between 1950 and 1985 the total energy used in world agriculture increased 6 9 times Irrigation played a particularly important role in the rapid increase in food production between 1950 and 1985 The world s irrigated land in 1950 totaled 94 million hectares but increased to 140 million by 1960 to 198 million by 1970 and to 271 million hectares in 1985 However the current rate of expansion has slowed to less than 1 % per year The world population continues to increase and agricultural production by the year 2000 will have to be 50 to 60% greater than in 1980 to meet demands This continued demand for food and fiber coupled with the sharp decline in the growth rate of irrigation development means that much of the additional agricultural production in future years must come from cultivated land that is not irrigated Agricultural production will be expanded in the arid and semiarid regions because these regions make up vast areas in developing countries where populations are rapidly rising Vertisols and Technologies for their Management N. Ahmad,A. Mermut,1996-12-11 Vertisols one of the eleven established soil orders are clay soils with unusual and interesting properties They cover more than 350 million hectares of land in the world and in tropical Africa alone there are over 100 million hectares Because of their very small particle size and high surface area these soils have higher physical and chemical reactivity than other soils Their interaction with agrochemicals industrial wastes has been increasingly the subject of research especially in the last two decades Vertisols create special problems when used for engineering purposes This book is intended to provide comprehensive and state of the art information about Vertisols worldwide Special attention is given to the use and management of soils such as fertilizer use crop selection soil tillage water restriction on land including irrigation and soil erosion A special chapter has been added to deal with geotechnical engineering of Vertisols Vertisols have great potential for agricultural production but many especially in the developing world are underutilized due to a lack of understanding regarding their behaviour and management This book is written by leading scientists worldwide It is expected that this monograph will be of great use to soil scientists and agronomists graduate and senior graduate students Improvement of their management may solve the current food deficiency in the world
