Time Present And Time Past:

Television Aesthetics Nikos Metallinos, 2013-11-05 USE FIRST TWO PARAGRAPHS ONLY FOR GENERAL CATALOGS
This volume offers a response to three ongoing needs to develop the main composition principles pertinent to the visual communication medium of television to establish the field of television aesthetics as an extension of the broader field of visual literacy and to promote television aesthetics to both students and consumers of television. Based on effective empirical research from three axes: perception, cognition, and composition, the aesthetic principles of television images presented are drawn from converging research in academic disciplines such as psychology, perceptual cognitive, and experimental neurophysiology, and the fine arts: painting, photography, film, theater, music, and more. Although the aesthetics of the fine arts were traditionally built on contextual theories that relied heavily on subjective evaluation, on critical analyses, and on descriptive research methods, the aesthetics of today's visual communication media consider equally valuable empirical methodologies found in all sciences. Investigations in these different academic disciplines have provided the constructs and strengthened the foundations of the theory of television aesthetics offered in this book. Special features include a great variety of pictures supporting the topics discussed, a thorough up-to-date and specifically related bibliography for each of the major parts of the book, computer drawings illustrating the concepts examined in the text, scientific data tables and charts documenting the research findings, cited simplified explanations of the processes of visual, auditory, and motion perceptions of images, enhanced by specific diagrams, detailed analyses of the threefold process of stimulation, perception, and recognition of televised images, and workable, easy-to-understand and use rules of picture composition, visual image evaluations, and television program appreciation.

River of Time Melissa Hamm, 2010-06 This is a story about a young woman who is a game warden in the rural hills of western Massachusetts where generations of her family have lived before her. She finds herself through a freak accident transported back in time a hundred years to the same area. She is found injured by the local doctor with whom a friendship quickly develops. She realizes that it will be impossible for her to continue in the profession of wildlife law enforcement and must now learn to live in a different time where there are different rules pertaining to women. As she struggles to adjust to a life where all that she loved and knew has been lost to her, she is fascinated by the people around her and the lives that they are living. She wrestles with the difficult choice of whether or not to reveal what she knows about future events, particularly after meeting her own great grandparents. As the days go by, she develops friendships and starts to put down her own roots, learning to accept what has been lost to her and embracing her new life until the day comes when she is faced with the choice of staying or leaving forever.

Transactional Analysis Approaches to Brief Therapy Keith Tudor, 2001-11-28 This book, edited by Keith Tudor, who is also one of the ten contributors, is excellent reading for a number of reasons. For those who know nothing about TA, it is a highly informative and readily accessible introduction. For those who read or studied it some time ago, it is an excellent refresher. I am impressed by the diversity of people and applications of TA.

and the developments outlined in this book are certainly for me cause for hope because as well as offering frameworks for making sense of humans in action and human inaction TA is a complex and profound system that offers people a way of solving the problems of the present re evaluating the struggles of the past and reshaping the future with permission and power based on a greater sense of self Nurturing Potential I wholeheartedly recommend this book to all therapists as enriching and interesting reading European Association for Transactional Analysis Newsletter It is a book which would offer helpful introductions to both the practice of transactional analysis and the attitude needed when planning brief therapy of any kind The Journal of Analytical Psychology Of all the approaches to therapy transactional analysis is arguably one of those most suited to time limited work At a time when short term therapy is increasingly dominant as a form of practice Transactional Analysis Approaches to Brief Therapy provides an insightful guide which both informs and challenges Rather than a single theory TA has developed as a group of four schools which share a common philosophy but place different emphasis on what occurs during the therapeutic process Written by therapists at the leading edge of developments in TA the book presents and differentiates each of these four approaches Through transcripts and commentaries it shows how theory applies to practice for example in treating post traumatic stress or in achieving a one session cure The book also includes a useful glossary of TA terms as well as an appendix of Eric Berne's short script questionnaire In some ways critical of the zeitgeist of short termism and the commercial pressures for therapy to be brief the book seeks a balance between the challenge TA offers as an actionistic approach to quick and efficient therapy and the importance of relationship in therapy which is time conscious It will be enlightening reading for all those training and those already trained as therapists and counsellors in TA

T. S. Eliot: The Poems Martin Scofield, 1988-03-10 The poems some of the poetic drama particularly Sweeney Agonistes and relevant sections of prose criticism are discussed in detail and placed in relation to the development of Eliot's oeuvre and more briefly to his life and a wider context of philosophical and religious enquiry Introduction

History and the Contemporary Novel David Cowart, 1989 Cowart presents a study of international historical fiction since World War II with reflections on the affinities between historical and fictional narrative analysis of the basic modes of historical fiction and readings of a number of historical novels including John Barth's The Sot Weed Factor Marguerite Yourcenar's Memoirs of Hadrian Russell Hoban's Riddley Walker Margaret Atwood's The Handmaid's Tale Giuseppe Tomasi Di Lampedusa's The Leopard D M Thomas's The White Hotel William Faulkner's Go Down Moses and Umberto Eco's The Name of the Rose He proposes recognizing four modes of the historical novel the past as a distant mirror of the present fictions whose authors seek to pinpoint the precise historical moment when the modern age or some prominent feature of it came into existence fictions whose authors aspire purely or largely to historical verisimilitude and fictions whose authors reverse history to contemplate utopia and dystopia in the future Thus historical fiction can be organized under the rubrics The Distant Mirror The Turning Point The Way It Was and The Way It Will Be This fourfold schema and his focus on postwar novels set Cowart's work apart from previous studies which have not devoted adequate space to the contemporary historical novel. Cowart argues that postwar historical fiction merits more extensive treatment because it is the product of an age unique in the annals of history: an age in which history itself may end.

Handbook of the Brief Psychotherapies Richard A. Wells, Vincent J. Giannetti, 2013-11-22

The last two decades have seen unprecedented increases in health care costs and at the same time encouraging progress in psychotherapy research. On the one hand, accountability, cost effectiveness and efficiency have now become commonplace terms for providers of mental health services, whereas on the other hand an increasingly voluminous literature has emerged supporting the effectiveness of a number of types of psychotherapies. There now exists the possibility for the design and delivery of mental health services that drawing upon this literature more closely approximate empirically established data concerning the appropriateness and effectiveness of psychotherapy. The Handbook of the Brief Psychotherapies is intended to capture one major thrust of this movement: the development of a group of empirically grounded, time-limited therapies all sharing a common interest in the clinical utilization of a structured focus and an emphasis on time and action. For many years, professional self-interest, competing theoretical paradigms and the vagaries of practice wisdom and clinical myth have influenced the practice of psychotherapy. A critical questioning of the resulting predominantly nondirective, open-ended and global therapies has led to a growing emphasis on action-oriented, problem-focused, time-limited therapies. Yet ironically this interest in the brief psychotherapies has not so much involved a radical departure from traditional therapeutic modalities as it has emphasized a new pragmatism about how time, action and structure operate in life as well as in therapy.

Mikhail Bakhtin Gary Saul Morson, Caryl Emerson, 1990

Books about thinkers require a kind of unity that their thought may not possess. This cautionary statement is especially applicable to Mikhail Bakhtin whose intellectual development displays a diversity of insights that cannot be easily integrated or accurately described in terms of a single overriding concern. Indeed in a career spanning some sixty years he experienced both dramatic and gradual changes in his thinking, returned to abandoned insights that he then developed in unexpected ways and worked through new ideas only loosely related to his earlier concerns. Small wonder then that Bakhtin should have speculated on the relations among received notions of biography, unity, innovation and the creative process. Unity with respect not only to individuals but also to art, culture and the world generally is usually understood as conformity to an underlying structure or an overarching scheme. Bakhtin believed that this idea of unity contradicts the possibility of true creativity. For if everything conforms to a preexisting pattern then genuine development is reduced to mere discovery, to a mere uncovering of something that in a strong sense is already there. And yet Bakhtin accepted that some concept of unity was essential. Without it the world ceases to make sense and creativity again disappears, this time replaced by the purely aleatory. There would again be no possibility of anything meaningfully new. The grim truth of these two extremes was expressed well by Borges: an inescapable labyrinth could consist of an infinite number of turns or of no turns at all. Bakhtin attempted to rethink the concept of unity in order to allow for the possibility of genuine creativity The goal in his words was a nonmonologic unity in which real change or surprisingness is an essential component of the creative process As it happens such change was characteristic of Bakhtin's own thought which seems to have developed by continually diverging from his initial intentions Although it would not necessarily follow that the development of Bakhtin's thought corresponded to his ideas about unity and creativity we believe that in this case his ideas on nonmonologic unity are useful in understanding his own thought as well as that of other thinkers whose careers are comparably varied and productive
